Many Interesting Talks At School of Republican Education League Here

National, State and Local Issues Discussed Here on Wednesday at Republican League School by Prominent Speakers.

LOCAL SPEAKERS

Philip Elting and Mayor Heiselman Invited To Address The Women at Afternoon Session.

Following an enjoyable luncheon with a delicious meal well served by the Governor Clinton Hotel, on Wednesday, the members attending the School of the Republican Educational League, adjourned to the lounge for the afternoon session of the school.

Mrs. Ives was the first speaker in the afternoon, taking for her subject, "State Issues." She reminded her audience that for the first time in 11 years, the Republican party was absolutely in the minority, in state and nation. Eleven years ago Alfred E. Smith changed upstate Republicanism to Democracy because he knew how, very quietly to pick the key men from the Republican party, getting them to work with the Democrats as good neighbors. Today those Republicans are wondering whether they were good natured or gullible. They suddenly found the Democrats very active in all sorts of ways.

Coming down to the present time we find that several bills presented to our State Legislature seemed to have been sponsored by the Congress of the United States. Moreover, though holding the office as Postmaster General, James A. Farley is state and national Democratic chairman and will be in line for the 1936 campaign, the most partisan piece of politics ever put over in New York state.

Mrs. Ives called attention to the present fashion of the Democratic party taking away Republican jobs, no matter how well handled, or how properly awarded, so that they might be given to Democrats. The legislation bringing this to pass is called "ripper" legislation and the bills presented removing Republicans to give place for Democrats, or else doing away with the position itself and restoring it under some other title and filling it then with a Democrat are called "ripper bills." (The speaker evidently did not know how familiar Ulster county is with such procedure.)

Mrs. Ives went on to tell of many mort acts of the administration of "broken promises," which gave pause for thought. In the line of taxes the speaker mentioned the 40 per cent increas in gasoline tax; a new tax of 40 per cent upon unincorporated business—small business—in addition to the income tax, which is greater now in the state than the Federal income tax. Just one Democratic promise of its platform has been kept; "Cooperation with the administration in Washington."

Reapportionment Bill

Viewed from another angle the Democrats now hold the office of governor of New York state, other state offices, and the senate. It is now the duty of the Republicans of the state to see to it that they gain control of the assembly this next election, lest they lose such control for years to come. The many non-voting citizens must be reached and converted to the Republican standard. One thing to be thankful for was that the reapportionment bill was not passed. The speaker had seen the plan for such reapportionment after the realignment of districts, making Westchester county, for instance, look like a jig saw puzzle, etc; and cutting out the colored population of New York city so that there would be no colored assemblymen where now we have two. Because of the great importance to hold the assembly, Mrs. Ives begged the women to use every effort to see to it that Republican assemblymen be elected at the next election.

At this juncture Philip Elting and Mayor Heiselman arrived on the scene and were invited to address the women present.

Philip Elting Talks

Mr. Elting first expressed his sense of the great loss to the community and to the Republican party in the state, sustained by the death of Dr. Mary Gage-Day, as had the meeting when it opened in the morning. Mr. Elting said that Dr. Day had been a forceful and useful Republican chairman, a good citizen, loyal to the party which would miss her deeply and which profoundly appreciated her worth.

Mr. Elting went on to say that at present the Republican party in the county is in good shape. Its one great responsibility at present was to secure control of the state assembly at the next election, which would come in an "off" year only so far as the Presidential election, etc., was concerned.

Mayor Heiselman followed Mr. Elting, and tremendously spoke of the unemployment condition, wherein 500 looking for employment might have 12 who would make application for a job, but only one could get the job. Naturally the other 11 would be more or less discontented. With such conditions to contend with the city administration was doing all it could to give an honest, good, businesslike administration of affairs.

Roosevelt Meets With Advisors On Bonus As Senators Stand Firm

Supporters of Patman Measure Say There Will Be No Compromise and Inflationary Bill Will Go to President in Form it Passed Senate—Oklahoma Senator Says He's Working Hard to Get Votes Enough to Override Veto.

Washington, May 9 (AP).—While President Roosevelt called in his financial advisors today to discuss the bonus situation, senator supporters of the Patman bill announced there would be no compromise and they would submit the inflationary measure to the president as it passed the senate Tuesday.

Mr. Roosevelt summoned Secretary Morgenthau and Frank T. Hines, the veterans administrator, for a mid-afternoon conference to go over the Patman measure preparatory to a veto.

Senators who led the fight for the Patman measure, providing for payment of the bonus with $2,000,000,000 of new currency, said they had rejected proposals for a compromise to make the currency issue optional with the president.

This had been proposed by Senators Clark (D-Mo) and Gore (D-Okla), as a means of gaining more votes in an effort to pass the bill over a presidential veto. Patman bill supporters decided, however, to stand on the present measure.

Are Working For Votes

At the same time, Senator Thomas (D-Okla), senate leader of the Patman bill forces, entered motions that would permit him to change his mind later and ask for reconsideration of the vote. He said he was making the move as a precautionary step only, and had no intention at the present time of going through with it.

"I think the bill is strongest in its present shape," the Oklahoman told newspapermen. Asked if he had enough votes to pass the measure over a veto, Thomas said:

"We are trying to get them, we haven't got them now. But we can't get any more votes by reconsidering. If we get one vote, we will lose three."

A few moments later, Senator Long (D-La) came out of the senate chamber to tell newspapermen he had conferred with Thomas and Senator Borah (R-Ida.) and was ready to announce that they would not compromise. He returned a minute or two later to say that Senator McCarran (D-Nev.) concurred with them.

Sears, Roebuck Manager Leases Residence Here

Wednesday afternoon Leonard H. Beeres, a representative of the Sears, Roebuck Company was in Kingston, visiting the building on Wall street that is being reconstructed to house the business of the nationally known firm when it opens next month.

Mr. Beers seemed highly pleased with the progress being made by the several contractors on the job and is confident that the store will be ready to open as one of Kingston's most modern business houses early in June.

While in Kingston Mr. Beeres made arrangements for his residence, leasing the property of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Seymour at 232 North Manor avenue through the real estate agency of Sam N. Mann, 56 Abeel street. He expects to be living in this city by May 28.

Mr. Beers, who has managed Sears, Roebuck stores in some of the biggest cities in the country, after inspecting the work being done at the Wall street store, returned to New York city where he is a member of the staff working in the district office of the concern.

When he returns to Kingston later in the month he will interview applicants for jobs in the new store. There are hundreds on the list for employment, he said yesterday.

Plantiff Testimony Closed in Negligence Case in Supreme Court

Testimony for plaintiff was closed in the Svennevick-Kelder actions against Mr. and Mrs. Lester Wynkoop in supreme court this morning. Counsel for defendant moved to dismiss the complaints on the grounds plaintiffs had failed to prove a cause of action and also on the grounds plaintiffs were not free from negligence. The motion was denied.

The first witness called by defendant was George Terwilliger of Kerhonkson. He is an uncle of Mr. Wynkoop. On April 17, 1934, he rode from Pataukunk where he had spent the night with Mr. and Mrs. Wynkoop to Tabasco in the car with Mrs. Clara Wynkoop. He testified the windshield on the car was not so dirty but that there was clear vision through it. In the drive from Pataukunk to the scene of the accident he said there was about three miles of dirt road to be traversed. They left Pataukunk at 7:30 o'clock. He left the car four miles before the scene of the accident was reached and at the time the car was missing on one cylinder.

Trooper Testifies

Trooper David Soule who tested the brakes on the Wynkoop car the day of the accident was next called. He said he was now operating the Safety Squad car out of Trooper Headquarters in Albany and tested brakes and checked bus terminals and airports throughout the state. One of his duties is to check the efficiency of brakes on cars and trucks. In this work he said he checked about 300 cars a month. LeRoy Lounsberry, attorney for defendant, qualified the witness as an expert on brakes. Soule said he received word of the accident while at Saugerties and went to the scene. He arrived about 10 o'clock and Sergeant Hopkins and Deputy Sheriff Molyneaux was there when he arrived. He testified that there was a lunch box strapped on the rear carrier of the Kelder boy's bicycle and he gave John Olsen permission to remove the lunch box in order to get a letter which was to be mailed. After the photographs shown in evidence had been taken of the car and the scene he said he tested the brakes at the direction of Sergeant Hopkins. He backed the car down the road and drove it at a speed of 15 miles an hour and applied the brakes. With the foot brake the car stopped in 15 feet and at the same speed it was stopped with the hand brake in 25 feet. The foot brake he pronounced as perfect and the hand brake fair. There was considerable objection to this testimony on the grounds that he was characterizing the condition of the brakes but he explained that these were terms used in the statewide checking of brakes and as prescribed by the department.

On cross examination he said the test had been made on an upgrade but this he said did not affect the braking power of a car, it simply permitted a car to stop in a shorter distance. A grade he said had no effect on the power of brakes. He described the windshield as being generally muddy but there was clear space in front of the driver where the wiper had been operated. The law he said required windshields to be kept "reasonably" clean and he so considered that windshield.

Asa Wynkoop, Sr., of Tabasco, testified to having gone to the scene and what he saw there and Lester Wynkoop, husband of defendant, Clara Wynkoop, also testified at the morning session.

POLICE RADIO SYSTEM PROVING A SUCCESS

The Kingston police department radio broadcasting station in the city hall that was placed in operation Sunday, April 28, has now been operating for about two weeks and during that time the system has proven a success and added greatly to the efficiency of the police department. That fact was proven recently to the board of police commissioners who made a tour of the city in the radio cars one evening.

8 Persons Killed

Tokyo, May 9 (AP).—A Rengo (Japanese) news agency dispatch from Harbin today said eight persons were killed and 103 injured when two trains of the Chinese Eastern Railway collided near Shihtouhoizu, 120 miles southeast of Harbin. The dispatch said confused signals apparently caused the wreck. A passenger train plowed into a standing freight, the Rengo report said.

Sheehan Contracting Corp. Starts Work On East Chester By-pass

Representative of Company Arrived Late Wednesday to Select Men From NRS To Work on New Road Here.

VETERANS PREFERRED

Under Ruling of National Recovery Act War Veterans Given Preference in Jobs.

The Sheehan Contracting Corporation, which was awarded the contract to build the East Chester street by-pass to Route 9-W commenced work on the contract this morning.

About 4 o'clock Wednesday afternoon a representative of the corporation called at the office of the National Re-employment Service in the city hall and selected four men who were placed at work on the job this morning. All four men were war veterans. The number of men to be employed on the job will be increased as soon as the preliminary work of getting ready is completed.

Under the ruling of the National Recovery Act the contractor is forced to give preference in selecting labor to war veterans with dependants who qualify for the job.

The new road is to be of concrete with 3-strip road on East Chester street from Broadway to near Woods street, and from that point on to where it connects with 9-W just beyond the Saugerties road railroad crossing the road will be of a 2-strip concrete. The new black concrete will be used in building the road.

Mayor Heiselman to Hold Public Hearing On Proposed Charter

Mayor C. J. Heiselman will hold a public hearing on Thursday evening, May 16, at 7:30 o'clock, at the city hall on the proposed local law to revise the present city charter.

The new charter amends, supplements and repeals certain sections of the present charter. It also provides a new form of city government, abolishing a number of the boards, provides for a smaller common council elected at large instead of by wards, changes the term of office of various city officials, etc.

The common council at its meeting Tuesday evening voted to submit the charter to the voters of the city at a special election to be held on July 23.

Under the provisions covering the enactment of all local laws it is necessary, after the council has acted favorably, for the mayor to hold a public hearing.

The holding of the public hearing will not affect the holding of the special election in July.

COMPENSATION INSURANCE SHOWS BUSINESS UP-SWING.

Albany, N. Y., May 9 (AP).—A definite business upswing for New York state industries was reported today by Charles G. Smith, manager of the state compensation insurance fund.

Basing his prediction on a 50 per cent increase in insurance premiums for the first quarter of 1935, Smith said the figures "show plainly that industrial payrolls throughout the state are mounting" and "provide an adequate basis for the conclusion that general business conditions are improving."

The state's written premiums for the first quarter of 1935 were $3,292,000, compared with $2,087,000 during the same three months last year.

Fairlawn Store Owners And Employes Hold 1st Get-Together Meeting

Two Hundred Forty-one Fairlawners Hear Interesting Talks Relative To Business and Enjoy Entertainment and Dancing.

56 STORES IN CHAIN

Independent Grocers Now Have 56 Stores in the Portions of Five Nearby Counties.

Two hundred and forty-one Fairlawn Store owners, managers and employes forgot business for the time and assembled Wednesday evening at Golden Rule Inn at Ulster Park where they enjoyed a chicken dinner, listened to some entertaining stories by Clarence Schoonmaker, toast master, and then heard several interesting talks relative to business. Following this there was entertainment and dancing to the music of Roger Baer and his orchestra. Not only did the Fairlawners acquire some information which was of benefit to them from a business standpoint but they also held their first get-together meeting and the members of Fairlawn Grocery stores from five counties, which makes up this district, became better acquainted.

Organized in this territory last September the Fairlawn chain of independent grocers now has 56 stores in the portions of the five counties in which Kingston district is located and three more stores are in the process of being altered and made a part of the Fairlawn Stores system.

The Fairlawn Stores system of independent grocers is sponsored by Everett & Treadwell, jobbers of this city, with Stanley Winne, supervisor of the district. Arrangements for the very successful banquet and dance Wednesday evening were chiefly in charge of Mr. Winne and the Fairlawners present were joint guests of the Fairlawn Stores Association and Everett & Treadwell Company of this city.

During the serving of the dinner Roger Baer's orchestra rendered several selections and there was also community singing. The business session was called to order by Cornelius S. Treadwell, president of Everett & Treadwell, wholesale grocers and jobbers. Mr. Treadwell presented Clarence Schoonmaker, secretary of the local Y. M. C. A., and the first speaker introduced was Mayor Conrad J. Heiselman of Kingston.

Mayor Welcomes Gathering

Mayor Heiselman was placed in a rather embarrassing position. One of the duties of any mayor being to offer to the visitors the key to the city. Since the banquet was not held in the city the mayor was at a loss to play host in that manner but with the ingenuity for which he is famous Mr. Heiselman welcomed the folks and offered them the key to the city and its suburb, Ulster Park, and welcomed them to Ulster county. Mayor Heiselman spoke of the intelligence which the members of the Fairlawn Stores had shown in banding themselves together in a cooperative group, for he said by this method of business better results could be attained. By the system competition could be met, through cooperative purchasing better prices could be secured and by this bulk buying and other merchandising means greater profits could be attained and the public offered quality merchandise at a lower price.

Talks on Advertising

Louis Weil of N. W. Ayer & Son, advertising agency, was next introduced and talked on advertising as presented by the Clicquot Club Ginger Ale campaign which is about to start on a nation wide basis. Mr. Weil said that the Clicquot Club ginger ale people had been in business since 1881 putting out a quality product and that through advertising the company had built up a tremendous business. He spoke of the coming advertising campaign which would be carried out through the summer and told of the benefits which Fairlawners could reap through cooperating. As an illustration of the benefits of advertising Mr. Weil cited the results of the Clicquot company when it introduced a full quart bottle on the market a short time ago. As a slogan the company adopted the statement that in every bottle was 32 ounces, a full quart, a glass more than in most other bottles then on the market. This campaign had brought results through nation-wide advertising and in local newspapers. In order to make the point come home more clearly to the consumer this quantity as well as quality would be continued in the 1935 campaign. In 1934 the sales of Clicquot Club ginger ale was much more than in the preceding year and this Mr. Weil said the company credited to appealing advertising.

Merchandising Discussed.

Next William A. Dolan, president of a corporation manufacturing several lines of goods, was presented and he gave a very interesting talk on merchandising. He contrasted private brands with nationally advertised brands and spoke of the advantages of cooperation as shown through voluntary cooperation plan as adopted by Fairlawn Stores. Mr. Dolan stressed the point of successive selling by clerks and of the manner in which this could be done successfully. In order to suggest a sale to a customer he said it must be done in an easy, natural manner so as not to embarrass a customer.

Governor Signs Measure To Promote Scenic State

Albany, N. Y., May 9 (AP).—Coincident with the signing today of the Twomey bill creating a bureau of publicity to advertise the physical attractions of New York state, Conservation Commissioner Lithgow Osborne announced appointment of Allan Reagan, Albany nowspaperman, as the agency's director.

Reagan will receive $6,000 a year.

The bureau is established for one year, at the end of which conservationists will determine whether the results warrant its continuation.

The agency will be similar to the publicity bureau in the Department of Agriculture and Markets, set up last year to advertise milk and dairy products. It has an appropriation of $100,000 for the year.

"New York state is as richly endowed with natural beauties, historic sites and recreational facilities as any state," the governor commented.

"We have a greater variety of these attractions than any state. But we have been far too reticent in making them familiar to our own people and to the residents of other states. That is the objective at which this measure is aimed."

Among other bills signed were those providing:

That all traffic control signals shall have red on top, green at the bottom and amber, when used, in the center.

Villages may purchase land for public recreational purposes.

New York city may construct a street, road, boulevard or parkway across lands of Creedmoor State Hospital, Queens.

Fifteen Persons Were Lined up in the Branch Bank During the Robbery, But No Shots Were Fired.

MESSAGE HERE

General Alarm To Radio Cars Was Sent Over Police Broadcasting Station Here.

Newburgh, N. Y., May 9 (AP).—Five men armed with a machine gun held up a branch bank today and fled toward Pennsylvania in a small automobile with about $15,000 cash.

Fifteen persons were lined up in the bank—the Broadway branch of the Highland Quassaick National Bank and Trust Company—during the robbery, but no shots were fired. Citizens pursued the bandit car in automobiles, but were outdistanced.

State police in southern New York immediately set up a watch on all roads leading away from Newburgh, but at 10:30 a. m., E. S. T., about two hours after the robbery, the blue sedan in which the men fled had not been found.

"It looks like they have gone into a hideout," Corporal John C. Curran of Monroe barracks said.

A machine-gunner stood at the entrance to the bank while three men entered, two with drawn pistols.

Several patrons and four bank employes were threatened.

A state police alarm was telegraphed throughout New York state and was sent to nearby states.

The bank serves uptown Newburgh and was established about five years ago.

It was the third bank to be held up in the Central Hudson Valley in the last three or four months.

No Shots Fired.

Bank officials said no shots were fired.

Police Sergeant John E. Tierney said there were five robbers, contradicting early reports there were four.

"We don't know how much was taken, but at this time of the week it is possible there was a considerably amount of factory payroll money in the bank," he said.

Newburgh citizens chased the bandits in automobiles but were quickly outdistanced.

State police warned their outlying patrols to put all available men and cars on Sullivan county roads toward which the bandits' car was reported heading.

One report was that the men carried three bags full of currency.

Thirteen persons, 10 of them employes and three customers, were in the bank when a small blue sedan drove up in front.

The robbers quietly entered the bank and lined up everybody in sight in the foyer.

Then they ripped out a telephone line and proceeded to fill several bags with money. They failed to destroy a second telephone, however, and a girl clerk used the instrument to signal police as soon as the holdupmen had left.

All of the men were unmasked, and the bank employes said they were young men. One wore glasses.

Sergeant Tierney said he thought they were heading toward Montgomery, a village in Sullivan county.

"That road also leads toward Pennsylvania," Sergeant Tierney said.

The Newburgh holdup was the second bank robbery in New York state within 43 mours and the fourth since last winter. A bank at Eden, in which New York, was robbed by four gunmen Tuesday. Two of them were captured in Cleveland yesterday.

A bank at New Paltz, 16 miles north of Newburgh, was robbed of $60,000 several months ago. One of four men involved in this crime was arrested later in Chicago and some of the money was recovered.

Another recent robbery was at Sparkhill, where four men held up a bank and escaped with several thousand dollars.

Word Received Here

As soon as the Kingston police department received word from Newburgh that the bank there had been held up by five men, armed with machine guns, a general alarm to the radio cars was sent out over the radio broadcasting station in the city hall, and the cars were sent to all of the banks, warning the officers guarding the banks of the holdup in Newburgh.

Word from Newburgh stated that the men were traveling in a blue sedan, apparently a new car, and were last seen heading toward Montgomery.

48 Naval Planes Ready For Over-Water Flight From Honolulu Base

Honolulu, May 9 (AP).—The greatest over-water air fleet ever assembled—a squadron of 48 naval planes—was "on the line" early today for a take-off of an unprecedented flight to Midway Island.

The secrecy of war time surrounded Pearl Harbor naval bases as the planes were groomed for the 1,323 mile flight which signalized an initial step by America's fighting forces in linking by air remote Pacific territories.

Pearl Harbor guards halted every prospective entrant at the gates for close questioning, while a navy official explained that Hawaii, a strategic point in the Pacific naval maneuvers, must observe secrecy as much as the sea forces.

The official said secrecy was as important for the success of the maneuvers any moves which would be undertaken in wartime.

Preparations for the flight were begun suddenly yesterday as it was unofficially learned the big squadron, comprising about 200 men, would be absent for about a month. Observers took this to mean some of the planes might fly northward from midway to the Aleutian Islands, 1,700 miles away and northern boundary of a 5,000,000 square mile area in which the fleet is maneuvering.

High naval officials in Washington insisted the flight would not proceed farther than Midway Island.

Japanese Silent.

Japanese officialdom in Toyko, meanwhile maintained tightlipped silence on news of the scheduled flight. Reports in Washington that some Japanese disquiet existed over the flight, which would follow a leg of the proposed trans-Pacific commercial air service, were denied in official capital quarters.

The 48 planes were gassed and tuned to a fine pitch during the night for the flight, estimated to take about 12 hours. They were gathered "on the line" early today. The line in this case being a concrete ramp at the water's edge in Pearl Harbor, down which they roll for a takeoff.

A storm center was reported gathering about 1,500 miles northwest of Midway Island which may turn south rapidly enough to precipitate rough weather in the path of the airmen.

Rough Weather Possible.

Officials of the United States Weather Bureau here, however, considered it likely that the planes would outrun this threat and that "on the whole, weather conditions will be good the next 24 hours," with light variable winds and fair visibility.

It seemed likely that naval surface craft would be stationed along the route of the flight, to lend any assistance needed. The planes were reported fueled with sufficient gasoline to make the Midway flight and return halfway.

Midway Island is a way station in the proposed trans-Pacific commercial airline which Pan-American Airways hopes to inaugurate this summer.

File Business Certificates

Certificates have been filed with Ulster county clerk by Frank H. Johnson and Hugo Banz of 254 Boulevard that they are conducting a business under the name of the Pleasant Valley Inn on the Boulevard and by Myron Short and F. D. Pieczynske of Kingston that they are handling painting contracts under the firm name of Short & Pieczynske.

Sees Good Sign in Insurance Receipts

Charles G. Smith, manager of the New York State Insurance Fund, sees strong indication of growing business activity in the large increases in premium writings by the fund in the first three months of this year.

Mr. Smith announced today that premiums written during the first three months this year totaled $3,232,505 as compared with $2,087,762 in the corresponding period last year, an increase of 57 per cent. Earned premiums showed an increase of more than 52 per cent.

It was Mr. Smith's belief that even allowing for the State Fund's normal increase in business these figures showed plainly that industrial payrolls throughout the state were mounting, and that as the State Fund writes more than one-fourth of the total compensation insurance written in the state the figures furnished adequate basis for the conclusion that general business conditions are improving.

In 100 years, 76,00 deaths have occurred in marine disasters in the whole world. During the last three years, 96,300 deaths in motor vehicle accidents have occurred in the United States alone.

The literary program was in charge of W. L. Lachmann, and was as follows: "Old Folks at Home," sung by Grange; "Rock Me to Sleep," reading by Sister Mary Brink; "Pattern of a Shingle," Sister Margaret Parish; "Mother Machree," sung by Grange, and led by Worthy Master Hookey. All members told of their experiences the first day they went to the school. Readings on Famous Mothers, by Sisters Annette Roosa, Marjorie Morehouse, Carrie Adams, Jane Roosa, Louise Ransom. Tableau of "The Famous Mother," Sister Netta Parish. The May committee served delicious refreshments after the meeting.

WOODSTOCK

Woodstock, May 9.—The illness of Milton Wolven has delayed the Vidas concert which will be given at a later date.

The library will be closed on Friday for the institute which is to be held there.

The frequent rains during the last few days threatened considerable damage to the bridge construction underway. Had the waters risen much higher sand bag embankments and wooden framework would have been washed away. Luckily the clear weather came in time to prevent this. Besides the new bridges several culverts are being constructed in very low places. Instead of building a new detour bridge at Bearsville the old bridge has been moved into a position usable until the new one is completed.

The Woodstock library announces that dues for this year are now payable.

Each and every pedestrian will enjoy more hair-raising experiences if he crosses in the middle of the block, darts out from behind parked cars, or otherwise puts his life on the auction block.

Federal Housing Men In Kingston Today

W. K. Payne, manager of financial credit, E. J. Dennis of the legal department, and Richard W. Duggan, field representative, from the New York office of the Federal Housing Administration, spent today in this city at the office of the local organization in the Kingston Municipal Auditorium where they met a number of interested Ulster county residents who submitted their housing problems to them.

Mr. Duggan said that as a result of the canvass made in Kingston recently for better housing that $155,000 worth of pledges for housing modernization had been obtained and there had been submitted to the local banks applications for loans amounting to $32,000.

He said that so many inquiries had been received at the New York office from those interested in obtaining loans that it had been decided best to have three representatives from the New York office here today. If they were unable to complete the work they would remain over on Friday, but that was not definitely settled early this afternoon.

While in this vicinity the three experts will also make a tour of Ulster county to contact various better housing committees in the towns in the county.

KINGSTON, N. Y., MAY 9, 1935

DEFINING AN AGGRESSOR.

A new principle, of great international interest, appears in the mutually defensive treaty of France and Russia. They have agreed to use their military forces in each other's defense against an "aggressor" nation, with a special view to Germany as the most likely offender.

It has been generally assumed that the French and Russian governments themselves would decide whether any particular case constituted aggression and called them to fight as allies. There has been uneasiness throughout Europe on that point. It is too easy for any nation, when shooting begins, to declare itself attacked without warrant and summon its friends for help. Now it is explained that these two powers may pool their armed forces against another nation only when the League of Nations has defined the aggressor.

This is much better. It means that the European community as a whole will decide who started the shooting. It brings defensive alliances under the supervision of a presumably neutral authority. It is safer for Europe and for the world than a complex system of defensive treaties interpreted only by the parties signing them. It is another indication that, whatever may be thought of the League of Nations as a world organization, it may be essential for the preservation of Europe.

ICEBERG PATROL.

The annual iceberg hunt is on, to rid the North Atlantic of the glacial monsters that menace ships during the early summer. The special iceberg patrol of the U. S. Coast Guard is at work. The procedure is to watch for a great berg, approach it cautiously, and then let loose a few shots from the huge deck guns. The iceberg is blasted into a lot of smaller pieces, none of which are dangerous and all of which melt away faster than the giant mass would have done.

The ice patrol sends warnings to ships when bergs are sighted. It reports their number and location and the direction in which they are moving. Steamers receiving such warnings not only keep a sharp look-out for the bergs, but reduce their speed. A huge iceberg moving through the water is a thing of majestic beauty and awe. It would be a terrifying sight if passengers were not aware that the lesson of the Titanic disaster has been well learned. Liners no longer rush at full speed into an iceberg infested region.

PHILIPPINE DISORDER

The uprising in the Philippine Islands last week made a diversion, though not a pleasant one, from our own troubles. Most Americans have mentally said good-bye to the Philippines already, though our commitment to withdrawal does not become effective for 10 years. We do not relish the idea of having to fight again to suppress revolution there.

Apparently it will not be necessary. The native constabulary so far seems to have the situation pretty well in hand. It appears to be no formal or extensive revolt against American sovereignty, in spite of the demand made by the insurrectos for "immediate independence", but rather a blind protest against the misery inflicted by the world-wide depression. The accounts of the uprising give a stronger impression of the raggedness and hopelessness of the armed peasants than of their military strength. A wave of business improvement, providing a better market for native crops, would probably take care of the problem. Perhaps some strategic trade regulations at Washington would help.

SAVE THE "DEAD" TEETH.

Decaying and abscessed teeth are connected with many human ailments. Yet their effects are exaggerated and the drastic methods used are often foolish, says a specialist addressing a dental society. He declares:

Ninety per cent of the infections laid to the teeth do not belong to them. A great many of the dead teeth in properly selected cases can be taken care of without extraction. And every dead tooth preserved, with its cavities and nerve canal properly filled, is just so much to the good as regards mastication, digestion and health. The patient can eat with a dead tooth as well as a live one, as long as it is kept from further decay.

He insists that doctors are mainly to blame for wholesale extractions, and calls such a practice a mischievous fad. If it has been a fad, though, it seems to be dying out. Some doctors have been urging for years the same procedure urged by this dentist, and have blamed the dentists for unnecessary extractions. Some doctors, too, have been accomplishing remarkable results in the treatment of diseased teeth, and prolongation of their useful service, by means of ultra-violet light.

That Body of Yours

TEETH AND TOOTHACHE.

A few years ago dentists and physicians were of the opinion that civilized man would within the following 50 years have such poor teeth that he would be unable to chew ordinary foods and would be eating only specially prepared foods.

Today your dentist and doctor will tell you that future generations should have better teeth than the present generation because mothers will be eating the right kinds of food before the child is born, the child will be given the right foods to eat and develop strong teeth and will brush his teeth regularly to prevent decay from the outside.

The foods that build teeth and prevent decay are those that are rich in vitamins and minerals, particularly lime (calcium). Every growing child should have a quart of milk per day. There is no other food equal in calcium value to milk; the next in calcium richness comes the leafy vegetables and eggs. Milk products like cheese and butter are of course rich in lime.

However, once decay sets in, all the decayed tissue must be removed, a filling inserted, or if the decay has extended into root so that the root is wasting away, the tooth should be removed.

This decay often sets up toothache which is one of the meanest pains to which humans are subject. The decay should be gently cleared away as much as possible with a tooth pick, and a small pledget of absorbent cotton, moistened with oil of cloves, creosote or carbolic acid gently inserted in the cavity of the tooth. Another packing may have to be put in in three or four hours.

While this will stop the pain the tooth should be seen as soon as possible by your dentist who will save the tooth for you by cleansing it out thoroughly, removing all decay and then inserting a gold, cement, or amalgum filling.

If however the pulp (nerve and blood vessels) has become infected your dentist will try to save the tooth by removing the pulp, (or devitalize it is called) and putting in a filling all the way down the root.

If an X-ray examination shows that there is infection beyond the root, that is into the socket where the tooth lies, he will extract the tooth.

Talks to parents

Contamination

By BROOKE PETERS CHURCH

The children of the block were a mixed crowd of all ages who formed several groups according to their various interests. They ranged from the wealthy banker's children to the children of the town ne'er-do-well who had scarcely the means to keep his brood in shoes. But they all played together with no thought of difference in class or wealth.

All that is, but one small boy who lived with his mother in a big house with a garden. He was not allowed to mix with the crowd, and could be seen peering sadly through the fence while his neighbors romped about outside.

His mother loaded him with expensive toys, gave him a pony to ride, granted his every wish save the one that he be allowed to play with the children on the block. She insisted that he was too good to mix with them, and satisfied her own conscience by telling herself that he would learn bad things from them and become in some mysterious way contaminated by their speech and manners.

Nothing is worse for a child than such a training. If his home is one of high ideals and refinement, the influence of other children can not basically hurt him. They may wear off some of the excess polish and smooth down corners. The child may even learn a coarse word or two which he is bound to hear sooner or later and which will make little or no impression on him if he never hears such language at home.

Guarded from such contacts his youth will be lonely and unhappy, and later on either he may break away from leading strings and indulge in an orgy of the forbidden fruit, or remain an outcast from his kind always, a lonely and probably embittered man.

ENEMY'S KISS

by Evelyn McHugh

SYNOPSIS: Alison Reade, driving back to London with Guy Westurn, is rather ashamed of her terror of the night before. She had gone to a remote Sussex house to meet her father. But when her father did not arrive she was terribly frightened by a hideous man, and was rescued by Westurn and his bull dog Gaffe. Yet Alison suspects Westurn a little, although she likes him a lot. For the initials on the dog's collar are "G. L." instead of "G. W."

Chapter 10

SPECULATION

GUY put on speed and they went humming up the smooth rise ahead.

"Mr. Westurn . . ."

He did not look around and Alison repeated "Mr. Westurn?"

"Oh! Yes?" For a moment she could have sworn that he had jumped.

"Would you mind telling me one thing?"

"Anything! Go ahead?" He smiled at her and when he smiled like that she felt that she was silly even to doubt. "What is it?"

"Is Gaffe your own?"

"Yes. Why?" He looked surprised.

"Nothing. Only I wondered why it wasn't your name on his collar."

"Oh, as a matter of fact, I've only just bought him—from a friend."

"Mr. Westurn—is Gaffe your own?"

He answered slowly, was intent now on the road ahead.

"I see! I thought it rather funny when I saw it. I hadn't thought of that," Alison confessed.

"You thought I might be spinning you a yarn?" He did not look at her and he was frowning.

"Yes!"

He was silent, negotiating the turn into the main road, before he said, "I suppose my story sounded rather thin?"

"N-no. Only, well, a six-mile stroll in the rain—and at midnight—and turning up inside the house like that—"

"You thought I might be little Herbert's brother?"

Alison laughed. "No! I didn't suspect you like that. But I thought you mightn't want to tell me really who you were and what you were doing there."

"What do you think I was doing?"

"I don't know, quite," she admitted. "I thought perhaps it might really be your house."

"Mine? Good Lord, no!" He laughed. "I give you my word it isn't. I'd never seen it in my life before."

"OH, I believe you now." That was true. She didn't really doubt him. "Only it seemed such luck, your coming at the right minute like that. You know, it was luck!" She felt almost awed now, when she looked back, at the sheer chance of it.

"As you say, it was—luck." There was a note in his voice that made Alison turn pink. "I've been thinking about it all night."

"About?"

"My coming in like that. You see, I wasn't certain—I thought it was a bit rash and very nearly changed my mind." He was speaking rather earnestly now, his eyes on the road, his face set. "I looked twice at the window and wondered whether I'd chance it; and there was your light up in the bathroom."

"But—but if you saw me get in at the window, how could you see my light?" Alison was puzzled. "I mean, I'd been in the house quite a long time, more than twenty minutes, before I went to the bathroom."

"Had you? Then it wasn't you I saw getting in. It must've been—"

"Little Herbert?"

"That's about it," he agreed. "You see, all I saw was a dark shape getting in at the window. So I thought I'd have a look, but your light was on and I hesitated a bit and then suddenly your light went out, so I thought I'd investigate after all. And then you charged into me, so of course I thought it was you I'd seen and—well—"

Alison, listening to this confused statement, thought it a most lucid, clever account of the circumstances. She agreed at once.

"I see. I don't know what I should've done if you hadn't come in." She looked at the grey road winding up under the car, thinking, "I'm glad—oh, so glad—he did!" and added, aloud, "I couldn't have held the door and he'd have caught me before I got out of the window."

"You think he meant to catch you?" Guy asked doubtfully.

"I'M sure he did," said Alison simply. "I can't tell you why only, when he looked through the door, I'd a sort of feeling that he was looking for me—that he'd meant to find me! And that he was going to—to—kill me!"

"Good Lord! You poor child! No wonder you were frightened." His voice was very tender.

"You see, he must have been outside, have seen me come in and realized that the house was empty," she explained, glad to get the haunting memory of her fear out in words. "If he was a tramp and looking for money—he was, you know, or he wouldn't have broken in the desk, would he?—well, anyway, he must have been me pay off the car—I took out a whole bunch of English notes and he may've thought that it'd be pretty easy. He'd only got to finish me and clear out and no one'd know, would they? I mean, that it was him. He may have waited about till I was off my guard, on the chance that I'd leave my bag about and when I didn't, well—"

"Thank God I did come!" He said that as if he meant it.

"I know. I feel like that. You see, he was running after me down the stairs but then he must have heard you, or seen you strike a light and perhaps he got frightened. Don't you think so?"

"I expect so . . ."

"Anyway," ended Alison, "it was luck."

"I'll say it was. Apart from anything else, I shouldn't have met you otherwise, should I?" He smiled down at her as he spoke, giving weight to the light words.

"No. And I'm awfully grateful."

"You needn't be."

"I mean, for your staying on with me—seeing me through."

"You think I might have laid you fainting on the floor, stepped over your body and returned peacefully to Warley, leaving Little Herbert to finish whatever crime he had on hand?"

Alison laughed.

"Well—"

"It isn't done," he assured her gravely. "It's against the rules of the Burglars' Union."

FOX COMES TO GRIEF IN VENTURE AT CITY LIFE

New York, May 9 (AP)—A New Jersey or Westchester county fox, probably bent on looking into the little red hen situation of Manhattan, was in the bag today—outfoxed by a 12-year-old boy.

Ernest Wilder, Jr., was playing baseball near Riverside Drive when one of his companions shouted:

"Lookey: See the big squirrel."

"That's not a squirrel," said Ernest, a Boy Scout nature student. "That's a fox. Let's catch it."

A bombardment of rocks brought Reynard into the open. A motorcycle policeman came along, sized up the situation and called an emergency squad. But neither the policeman nor their tricky lassoes could snare the darting animal.

There's no telling how long the hunt would have lasted if young Wilder had not picked up a half-brick, wound up and let fly. The missile caught the fox on his nose, stunning him. The fox was taken to Bronx Zoo.

POLITICS at Random

By BYRON PRICE
(Chief Of Bureau, The Associated Press Washington)

WASHINGTON is learning that the privilege of spending four billion dollars will not be, politically, an unmixed blessing after all.

The very bitter disputes which have broken out between federal relief officials and a half dozen state administrations tell only a part of the story.

From the political viewpoint, Mr. Roosevelt and his helpers in spending must reckon with such other factors as the disappointment of local officials and private citizens who ask for money and receive none; the opposition charges of graft and political manipulation, whether it exists or not; the dangers which lurk in personal rivalries in the works relief set-up; and the complications which appear unavoidable in the handling of relief funds down in the local communities.

Appointments Confusing

Most of the key figures in the spending organization—particularly Mr. Ickes and Mr. Hopkins—have made numerous enemies on Capitol Hill. To get the relief bill through at all, the administration leaders had to give certain assurances that the authority of these men would be limited.

In announcing his selections for the important relief posts, the President adopted, manifestly for the same reason, a strangely confusing method of publicity.

He announced on one day that Mr. Walker would head the "applications division." Almost everyone jumped to the conclusion that Mr. Walker would be the really big figure in work relief.

But next day, the White House announced that another tremendously important place would go to Mr. Tugwell. The next day after that, Mr. Ickes was disclosed as the king pin of the set-up, and on the fourth day about the same thing happened to Mr. Hopkins.

It was all very confusing, as many people supposed it was intended to be; but it salved some worried spirits, and for the time being seems to have left everyone concerned feeling pretty good.

• • •

'Enemies Being Made'

THE new organization needed a halo of friendly cooperation and good fellowship about its head to help withstand the shock which descended upon it almost immediately.

State and municipal officials congregated in Washington in almost unbelievable numbers. They found the work relief situation so involved, and so hedged about with technicality, that many of them went away very much discouraged. Eventually many must be disappointed and probably alienated, for even four billions will go only so far.

These local officials also brought to Washington stories of disappointments down at the other end of the line—among the recipients of relief themselves.

One mid-western mayor told the relief dispensers plainly they were making enemies in every direction. Even those on relief, he said, were growing embittered because Mr. Hopkins' social workers were prescribing diets nobody liked, and insisting on regulations for which nobody could figure out the reason.

The remedy proposed by this particular city official was to place the whole problem of local administration in the hands of the local Democratic party organization—which was pictured as also about to join the ranks of the disgruntled, because it had been ignored.

A Reason For Caution

ALL in all, there are those versed in politics who think the expenditure of the work relief money may, in the end, hurt Mr. Roosevelt more than it benefits him politically. Perhaps that helps explain the caution with which he is proceeding.

Jelly Bear Speaks

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

THE Indians were not dancing now. They were gathered around in a half-circle back of Big Chief Eagle who was a magnificent looking chief, dressed in clothes such as the Puddle Muddlers had never dreamed they would see. But that was the trouble. Were they dreaming this?

"I may be dreaming," continued Willy Nilly, "that I'm seeing these Indians arriving and hearing their chief speak to us."

"But how could I be dreaming that I'm hearing you say this and you're talking over whether it's a dream or not with me?" answered Rip.

"It's quite possible you're not really answering me, but that I'm only dreaming that you are," said Willy Nilly.

"No, I'm really answering you," barked Rip. "I'll give you a wee nip and you'll know you're awake."

"Ouch!" said Willy Nilly. "I suppose I can't be dreaming, but it is all so very, very strange.

Willy Nilly was more puzzled than ever. Then to his surprise Jelly Bear began to speak in a loud voice.

"You are not dreaming, Willy Nilly! I, Jelly Bear, your bear who came to you these several years gone now, who came to you and took your jelly you had made from juicy apples and who ate it without thought but with great appetite, and you forgave and let me make this my home. And to this I brought my Honey Bear bride, and our cubs were given home here too.

"You are not dreaming, Willy Nilly."

"I never heard Jelly Bear speak like that before," said wondering Willy Nilly.

ZENA

Zena, May 9—The Rev. Father Gregory Mabry, formerly of the Holy Cross Church in Kingston, but now of Brooklyn, visited Zena one day last week.

The week-end brought many out of town folks to their homes here: Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Schulte and daughters were at the stone house; Miss Madaline Briggs and her brother, George, and his wife motored up from New York city and opened up her cottage, "The Brigg," for the season; Messrs. Allen Parker and John Varney drove up from the city on Saturday afternoon and in the evening Mr. Parker entertained Mr. Varney at dinner at his home in Woodstock; Mrs. Whitney was at the Old Mill; and the Misses Nellie and Carrie Cannright came up from Newburgh for the week-end with their parents.

There were guests at the Meitler cottage by the Sawkill over the week-end.

Mrs. Nathan Younge and her daughter, Nettie, from Derby, Conn., returned to their home on Saturday afternoon, having spent the night with Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Long, after the funeral of Sam Draffen, brother of Mrs. Younge, who died at his home in Grand Gorge on Tuesday and was interred in Zena on Friday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Aurel Holumzer with their daughter, Edna, and son, Albert, motored to Pennsylvania to spend the week-end with Mrs. Holumzer's brother, A. Klementis, and family.

Friday morning Mrs. George Hung went to Albany, returning that afternoon with her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. William Wilson, of West Hurley. Mrs. Wilson has been a patient for the past month at St. Peter's Hospital where a very serious but successful operation for goitre was performed.

Hanson Booth is again in Zena after a very pleasant trip to California where he visited with his brother, also making visits to several other points of interest.

Services and Sunday school were held Sunday afternoon in the Reformed Church with the Rev. John Heidenreich in charge. The young ladies' chorus sang.

Elmer Hung is captain of the Woodstock caddies this season.

A Washington Daybook

By HERBERT PLUMMER

WASHINGTON—One could have foretold days ahead with a reasonable degree of accuracy what would happen—and did happen—in the senate when the Costigan-Wagner anti-lynching bill made its formal appearance before that body.

The setting was almost identical with that of 1922 when the Dyer bill, the counterpart of the Costigan-Wagner measure, was up for consideration. The only difference concerned the principal actors.

In 1922 it was the late Oscar Underwood of Alabama who arose in the senate and served notice that not a lick of work would be done until the objectionable bill was withdrawn. For days he had the clerk read back issues of the senate journal until he had forced his point.

In this instance it was the trio of Smith of South Carolina, Connolly of Texas and Bailey of North Carolina—particularly the latter—aided and abetted by the silent cooperation of a half-dozen or more southern senators, which performed the task of wrecking.

Bailey Is Long Talker

THE staid, serious Bailey of North Carolina proved himself a filibusterer of the first rank in this struggle. The son and grandson of ministers and himself for 14 years editor of the Biblical Recorder, the North Carolina senator hammered away tirelessly for hours in opposition to the bill.

Most of the time he reminded those who heard him of his forebears. At times he would thunder, "This bill is not going to pass! We will fight it out on this line, as General Grant said, if it takes all summer."

Again he would, with deadly severity, remind senators that he had the "honor to represent a commonwealth which was in existence before the Republic of the United States was created."

Democratic leaders made a mental note of the North Carolinian's ability to keep talking. They'll be calling on him for duty when the necessity arises for sustained vocal effort.

A 'Strategic Move'

THERE was more tack of the effort by senate republicans to force a vote on the Costigan-Wagner bill than appeared on the surface. Observers sensed a deep political strategic move.

Republican politicians, they contend, believed that by forcing a vote on the controversial bill they could put the democrats "on the spot" in many northern states where the negro vote carries the balance of power.

Prior to 1932, the negro vote in these states was almost solidly republican. In that year much of it swung to the democratic side.

GREAT MOTHERS

Abigail Alcott

ABIGAIL ALCOTT

IN "Little Women," Louisa May Alcott painted a word-portrait of her mother: "A stout, motherly lady with a 'can-I-help-you?' look about her which was truly delightful. She was not a particularly handsome person, but mothers are always lovely to their children."

That was what the four Alcott sisters thought, at any rate. Abigail Alcott, the wife of the New England educator and philosopher, had many endearing qualities. She was loving and sympathetic, had a fine sense of fun not overshadowed by her lofty ideals. Her sense of humor was fortunate, for her also loftily idealistic husband often left her burdened with material cares.

So it was when under his leadership "Fruitlands," an experimental agricultural colony, was established at Harvard, Massachusetts, with eleven colonists, including the Alcotts. Mrs. Alcott took care of them all, and her constant foresight kept the colony going.

When it finally disbanded, she went to Boston and became what would today be called a social worker.

Mrs. Alcott had three simple rules by which she brought up her four daughters: "Rule yourself. Love your neighbor. Do the duty which lies nearest you."

Louisa May Alcott early came to see and appreciate her mother's cares, and one reason for her pursuit of a writing career was the hope that some day she might be able to lift burdens from "Marmee's" tired shoulders.

When Louisa was too busy writing to have time for meals, "Marmee" would bring cups of hot tea or bites for hasty eating. "Moods," her first novel, was dedicated to her mother, "my earliest patron, kindliest critic, dearest reader."

As the family circle was gradually broken up by death and marriage, Louisa and Mrs. Alcott grew ever closer.

With the success of "Little Women" and its sequels and the prosperity that came to a popular author, Louisa was able to do for her mother everything that she had wanted to. "Mother is to be cosy if money can do it," she wrote. "She seems to be, now, and my long-cherished dream has come true; for she sits in a pleasant room with no work, no care, and no poverty to worry, but comfort all about her."

That was Louisa's great joy. She wrote of her mother: "Life was hard for her and no one understood all she had to bear but we, her children."

At last the pleasant room was empty. No longer had Louisa a "Marmee" to think for, plan for, care for. "A great warmth seems gone out of my life," she wrote. Now that she was no longer needed, she too was free to go.

This is the tenth of a series of biographies of "Great Mothers," prepared by the Golden Rule Mothers Day Committee, of which Mrs. James Roosevelt is honorary chairman. The Committee, which is sponsoring the nation-wide observance of Mothers Day "the Golden Rule Way" on Sunday, May 12, suggests the following paraphrase of the Golden Rule: "Whatsoever you would that others should do for your mother if she were in need, and whatsoever your mother would do for the needy if she had opportunity, do on Mothers Day for other mothers and children, victims of present-day economic maladjustments." An illustrated booklet of similar biographical sketches, poems, and tributes to mothers may be had for 10c by enclosing change, from the Golden Rule Mothers Day Committee, 60 East 42nd Street, New York.

Rolland Heermance Youngest Conductor At Mendelssohn Fete

Rolland Heermance of Saugerties is the youngest of the four conductors who will lead the 400 voice male chorus at the Kingston Municipal Auditorium on Friday, May 10. He is a director of the Catskill Glee Club that has won a fine reputation during the last eight years. This club with Mr. Heermance as conductor has been heard in Kingston and neighboring communities several times during the last three years. Until this year he served as assistant conductor to the Kingston Mendelssohn Club.

Mr. Heermance is also familiar to local audiences as a baritone soloist, appearing with the Mendelssohn Club and the Catskill Glee Club. He also served as soloist at the Clinton Avenue Methodist Church.

He will conduct the second group given by the Hudson Valley Glee Clubs at their joint concert. This group includes "John Peel," "Songs My Mother Taught Me" and "On the Road to Mandalay."

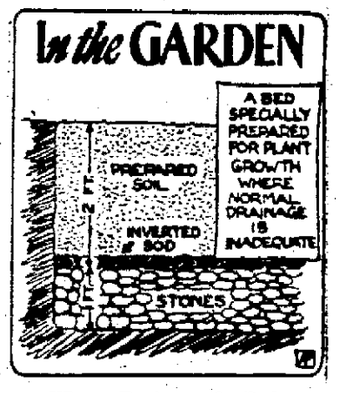
"John Peel" is one of the old English "Border Ballads" and belongs to both England and Scotland. The song tells of the famous hunter of by-gone days who rode hard and fast over the rough ground every day at dawn on his great strong horse. He followed the sounds of the horn and hounds during life and some say he still rides in spirit when the horns sound today.

The great Bohemian composer Dvorak gave the world an exquisite song of his native land in "Songs My Mother Taught Me." He has used the outstanding musical characteristics of the Bohemian gypsies and this haunting melody with its unusual harmony might have been taken from an old gypsy song.

Kipling's stirring poem, "On the Road to Mandalay," has been set to music by Oley Speaks well known American song writer. This story of a British soldier's experiences in the Budhist worshipping part of the Orient has become the best known of the "Barrock Room Ballads."

The Mendelssohn Club expects that this cincert of 400 voices will close its thirty-second season in a fitting manner. The concert is receiving enthusiastic support from friends of the club both in the city and county. It is expected that May 10, 1935, will be a date remembered by those fortunate enough to hear the concert and that Kingston's observance of National Music Week will be fitting.

In the GARDEN



Where Drainage Is Bad

In poorly drained soils, beds should be prepared three feet deep. In the bottom place a layer of stones covered with inverted sod, and fill with two feet of soil prepared for the plants intended to grow there. The bottom layer must be given some suitable outlet for surplus water. A drainage pipe to a sewer or some other outlet is preferable. A stone drain may be used but is likely to become clogged.

Not able to understand what happened, 15-months-old Dorothea Metzger is shown (with nurse) in a hospital at Macon, Mo., recovering from a broken leg and other injuries received when a transcontinental airliner crashed. Her Majesty, 'Mom'—Mother's Day, 1935

Sunday, May 12, Mother's Day, the nation again will pay homage to mothers, living and dead. Here are two mothers who have come prominently to the fore since Mother's Day a year ago, and two others who have held their place in the world's spotlight—famous mothers of famous children.

At the left is Mrs. Sara Delano Roosevelt, mother of the president, who has watched with keen interest and devotion the activities of her son in the second trying year of his leadership. In spite of advancing years, 1935 found Mrs. Roosevelt an active woman in and about her home, widely acclaimed whenever she appears in public.

The year holds special significance for Queen Mary, right. The empire-wide celebration, the Silver Jubilee, marking the twenty-fifth year of her husband's reign, already is under way. How much Queen Mary, who is a model wife and mother, has contributed to the success of that reign, perhaps only members of the royal family know. Mary is the mother of six children, five living.

The rise of little Shirley Temple who was elevated to stardom before she was six years old, brought upon her mother trials which only the mothers of famous children can know. Apparently, the Hollywood consensus is that Mrs. Gertrude Temple, above, is a wise mother, keeping her famous little daughter unspoiled in spite of the plaudits of the movie-going public.

To an inconspicuous French-Canadian mother, less than a year ago, the arrival of quintuplets brought fame that spread throughout the entire world. Mrs. Elzire Dionne, 25-year-old mother of the "quints", has been working for months to gain possession of the babies, now wards of the crown.

SHOKAN

Shokan, May 8—Prof. J. Plant of New York city has been spending a few days here as the guest of Dr. and Mrs. Hans J. Cohn. Professor Plant is connected with Beth Israel Hospital.

Robert Bloom of Newburgh called on friends in the village Sunday. Mr. Bloom, a former Shokan boy, served as a lieutenant of infantry in France during the World War.

A meeting of the Van Kleeck Cemetery Association was held in Winchell's Hall Sunday afternoon. The attendance at the meeting was small as compared to that in other years.

Mrs. Edmund Gearon returned to her home in New York city Saturday after a brief sojourn at her country home adjoining the Reformed Church grounds.

Henry Schipp, younger son of Charles Schipp of Kingston, is a new enrollee at Camp 78, C. C. C., Tannersville. The Schipp family removed from Ashokan to Kingston last fall.

The rain of Monday night and Tuesday raised the trout streams considerably though the water still remains too low for first rate fishing. The trout are there, all right, but the visibility is too good; they dart from their hiding places for the lure and make a lightning-like retreat without striking.

Ramon Nadai of Poughkeepsie spent Sunday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Batiste Nadal, of the heights section.

It is reported that Elder and Mrs. Arnold Bellows, who were married last week, will make their home at Ashokan. Elder Bellows is pastor of the Olive-Hurley Baptist Church and his bride, who was Florence Paxson of Leeburg, Va., is a daughter of Elder William Beebe of Warwick and a granddaughter of Elder Gilbert Beebe. Elder Bellows is very much liked here and local people are pleased that he will settle in this section.

An Olive real estate transfer of May 8, 1863, was that of a property in the northern part of the town from Joshua P. Davis to William and Hannah Hulbert. The Hulberts many years later took up their residence in the old village of Shokan.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Syme of New York city are spending a few days with Mrs. Syme's mother, Mrs. Jane Stubley, of The Cairngorm.

Mr. and Mrs. Cramer, prominent members of the art colony at Woodstock, were numbered among the many callers in the hub of the reservoir country recently.

Mrs. Homer Markle has been enjoying a vacation trip to Washington, D. C., and other points of interest.

Burr Elmendorf and family expect to remove to their newly remodeled home in the east end of the village this week. The family has resided for the past several months with Mrs. Sarah Elmendorf.

Transfer of the north reservoir boulevard from New York city maintenance to the state highway system is one of the most important changes in this section in many years, and there is considerable speculation locally as to what the state will do with this road which runs partly through both Shokan and Ashokan. Those who like to make fast time on their trips to and from Kingston of course are hoping for a concrete pavement, elimination of curves and, perhaps, an additional route to the county seat. One hour is reckoned as fair running time for the round trip to Kingston, though seasonal traffic conditions have an important bearing on this item.

Prof. David Conlin and two sons called on the elder Conlin's father in Saugerties Friday before returning Saturday to their home in South Norwalk, Conn. Professor Conlin reports business decidedly better in the Connecticut manufacturing city.

Mrs. Albert Carman of Rensselaer motored here and spent Sunday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs Elmer Bedell.

Local sportsmen are interested in the efforts of Benjamin Winne and his fish and game association to have a trout rearing pool built in the Esopus watershed. For several years it has been a common complaint among fishermen that the trout in many streams are too small, and it is thought that a rearing pool will go a long way towards obviating this discouraging condition.

Services were held in the Olive-Hurley Baptist Church last Sunday.

Wednesday, May 9, 1860, the death took place of Peter Barringer. Funeral services were held on the 11th. Members of the Barringer family then, as now, were prominent in agriculture, their total farm acreage years ago totalling approximately 700 acres.

Gretchen Wells of Ashokan, winner of the town spelling bee last Friday, is a former pupil of the Shokan School. Miss Wells, in addition to her pronounced orthographical talents, is a young lady of modest and pleasing personality whose numerous friends in the twin villages would like to see her win the county championship.

Both basins of the Ashokan reservoir to all appearances are full of water. No tall stories of big trout catches have come up from the dividing weir thus far in May.

Mr. and Mrs. Burr and three children of Norwich called on relatives here Sunday. Mrs. Burr as a girl was Miss Amy Wands of Shokan.

Orval Forison, latest addition to Shokan's rapidly increasing summer resident colony, spent the week-end at his place on the mountain road.

Mrs. Reynolds Bishop of Lake Hill called on friends in the village Saturday.

Mrs Edwin Swenson of Locust Valley has been visiting at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Homer Markle.

Dr. and Mrs. H. L. Bibby of Kingston were callers Friday at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Hans J. Cohn.

District school meetings were the outstanding doings of the current. More about these stellar events later.

Remember your lights. Let them so shine that the other fellow will call you blessed instead of down.

ESOPUS

Esopus, May 8—The annual school meeting of School District No. 3, town of Esopus, held Tuesday evening, May 7, was well attended. In addition to the regular appropriations for the school year, it was voted to appropriate an additional sum for the transportation of high school students, of which there are eight. There was some amusement when nominations for trustee were in order. After three nominations, two of the nominees rose and stated that they "did not choose to run", and John H. Beaver was reelected unanimously. J. J. House was reelected clerk and Mrs. Mada Hamel collector.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Rothery and daughter, Jean, of Kingston spent several days here last week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alec Smith.

Robert House, who has been ill, is better.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hummell and son of Cairo, spent Sunday here at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Hummell.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert McGreevy of Kingston spent the week-end here at the home of Mrs. McGreevy's mother, Mrs. Robert Hamel.

There was no service at the Esopus M. E. Church last Sunday evening due to the absence of the Rev. Mr. Legg. Services for the coming Sunday will be conducted by the Rev. Mr. Legg as usual, who is to again have charge of both the Port Ewen and Esopus M. E. Churches for the coming year.

Sherman Finger, track coach of the University of Minnesota, has been given a sabbatical leave of absence for one school year that he may study physical education methods in Europe.

Preliminary Plans For the Scout Camp

Plans are rapidly being made for the operation of the Boy Scout camp of Ulster and Greene counties for the summer of 1935. Every Scout troop in the Council has recently received a bulletin with the proposed minimum goals for them to endeavor to meet, together with other announcements regarding the summer.

This year there will be no individual Scout registration but all Scouts will register with their scoutmasters and the scoutmasters in turn will register their troops for camp. One change has been made this year in regard to the cost. Those boys in troops registering by June will receive a cheaper rate than those registering after June 1. Already many troops are preparing to take advantage of this cheaper rate.

Within the next few days camp director, Lawrence M. Hill, and Scout Executive W. A. Wright will complete the plans for the summer and announce them through a bulletin to the troops and through the press.

Preliminary plans for the summer camp calls for the advance party leaving on June 28; the scoutmasters outdoor training school will take place July 6 and 7; camp will officially open on Sunday afternoon, July 7. The first period of 2 weeks will run from July 7 to Saturday afternoon, July 20; the second from Sunday night, July 21, to Saturday afternoon, August 3. Many specialties are being planned for the summer. Among these will be the Father and Son week-end at camp on July 13 and 14, the annual Service Clubs outing on July 17, and special plans are being made for week-end and short term camp for many troops, particularly those unable to attend for the full period.

From the advance information reaching the Council office it is apparent that the enrollment at Camp Half Moon this year will exceed that of any former year.

Announcement will be made very shortly as to the personnel of the Camp Staff for this summer.

The government thinks it has a right to run business, and business thinks it has a right to run the government, and thereby hangs a tale.

CROSLEY

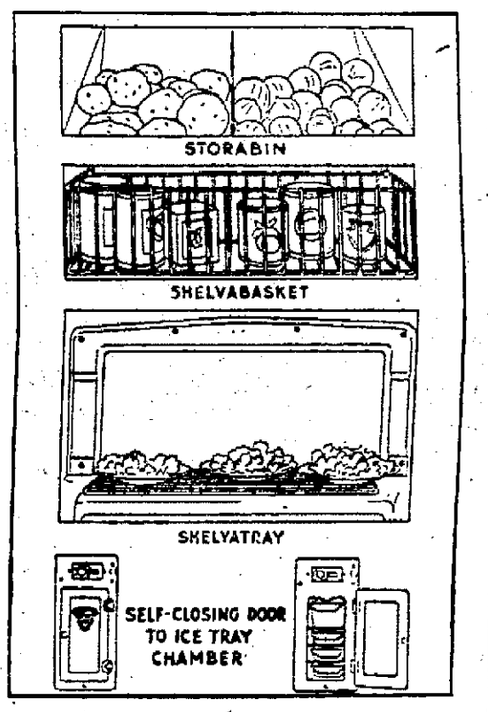
the most copied refrigerator in 1935

Yet only in a Crosley can you get the EXCLUSIVE Crosley Features . .

...Much More a Shelvador

You can see for yourself how much more usable space a Crosley has than any other electric refrigerator of similar rated capacity. And it's twice as easy to find things in the Shelvador . . . everything in front of you at your finger tips. There's only one Shelvador, and only Crosley has it.

AND NOTICE THESE SENSATIONAL FEATURES OF THE TRI-SHELVADOR



$112.50 and up

While Crosley engineers and manufacturing experts are held accountable for quality, operating economy and durability, practical housewives are consulted as the final word on matters of arrangement and convenience. That's why the more you use a Shelvador, the more you'll enjoy it.

ECONOMY

When you buy a Crosley you save on the first cost, and you save from then on. You'll save because your food bills will go down. You'll save because this refrigerator uses remarkably little electricity.

SIMPLICITY

Mechanical and electrical authorities will tell you that great engineering is simple engineering. Complication does not mean perfection. A look at the Crosley unit is eloquent proof of Crosley's extraordinary accomplishment in this direction. Crosley durability, reliability, and economy have their source in simplicity.

BEAUTY

When the cabinet designers began work, they weren't thinking particularly about modernism, or the Victorian age. They reasoned that an electric refrigerator should look cool, clean and simple . . . be easy to keep clean, and be simple to make so as to keep the cost down to the purchaser. The result was a classic. Ageless in beauty, no trickiness to intrigue on the instant and sicken on long acquaintance. Crosley cabinets are of universal appeal. They'll be at home in a real oldtimer of a kitchen, or look swell in an ultra-modern kitchenette. Those, we suppose, are some of the reasons why there have been so many frantic efforts this year to duplicate the secret of Crosley beauty.

WATCH KIDNEYS SAME AS BOWELS

Wash Out Your 70,200 Feet of Kidney Tubes

Your bowels contain only 27 feet of intestines, yet the kidneys contain nearly 10 million tiny tubes or filters which would measure 70,200 feet if laid end to end. Therefore, it is just as important to watch the kidneys as the bowels. Kidneys are working all the time and are one of Nature's chief ways of taking the acids and poisonous waste out of the blood.

Healthy persons pass thru the bladder 3 pints a day and get rid of more than 3 pounds of waste matter. If you pass less than this, your 70,200 feet of kidney tubes may be clogged with poisonous waste. This is a danger signal and may be the beginning of nagging backache, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swollen feet and ankles, rheumatic pains and dizziness.

Kidneys should be watched closely and need cleaning out the same as bowels. Ask your druggist for DOAN'S PILLS, an old prescription, which has been used by millions of kidney sufferers for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help to wash out your 70,200 feet of kidney tubes. Get Doan's Pills at your druggist. © 1934, Foster-Milburn Co.

The WORLD of STAMPS

By QUINTON JAMES

Shortly after the appearance of its contribution to the British empire's series of commemoratives in honor of King George's Jubilee, Canada is planning a complete new set for its various postal divisions.

The reason for the new issue, to have its official introduction June 1, is announced merely as "in consequence of a change in postage stamp contracts." It will replace the issue of 1932 as well as the higher values of 1930, denominations running from 1 cent to $1.

The designs, as already prepared, include the use of a new and later portrait of King George. He is wearing a military uniform. It will be found on the lower values, 1, 2, 3, 4, 5 and 8 cents. Various scenes have been placed on the five stamps running from 10 cents to $1.

For example, the 10-cent illustrates a member of the Royal Canadian Mounted police astride his horse, the 13-cent has a picture of the group that made up the confederation assembly at Charlottetown in 1864, the 20-cent shows a view of Niagara Falls from the Canadian side, the 50-cent illustrates the parliament buildings at Victoria, B. C., while the $1 has a reproduction of Champlain's monument.

In addition a new 6-cent airmail has been made ready bearing an allegorical figure of flight. A new 20-cent special delivery express stamp completes the set, the design being indicative of speed.

The group numbers 13 stamps.

Manchukuo Pays Tribute

Coupled with Japan's special stamps in honor of the visit of Emperor Kang Teh of Manchukuo, to Nippon, Manchukuo has announced a similar set of commemorates in connection with the occasion.

It contains four items, a 1½-fen olive green and a 6-fen rose depicting Mt. Fuji, the sacred mountain of Japan, as well as a 3-fen orange and a 10-fen blue with a pair of soaring phoenixes as symbolic of the "eternal exchange of courtesies between the two sovereigns of Nippon and Manchukuo." The latter two stamps include the national flowers of Japan and Manchukuo, the chrysanthemum and the orchid.

Manchukuo also has just inserted in its most recent printings of regular postage a 5-fen blue of the type illustrating the pagoda at Liaoyang.

Millions of Bibles Distributed in 1934

Many interesting facts were brought out at the 119th annual meeting of the American Bible Society, held in New York city today. Reports showed a distribution of 7,517,548 Bibles, Testaments and portions of the Bible during 1934, in more than 40 countries and covering 145 languages and dialects.

Since the society was instituted in 1816 a total of more than 261,000,000 Scripture volumes have been placed in circulation.

For the second year in succession an increased Bible circulation in China was reported. In Japan over 600,000 volumes were distributed and 270,000 homes and institutions visited.

In the United States the circulation was greatest in the middle west. Over 30,000 New Testaments were distributed in C. C. C. camps.

Among unusual incidents reported were: One colporteur walked five miles over icy roads to deliver a single Bible; a salesgirl was asked for "the most interesting Bible in stock;" a southern magistrate purchased 100 Bibles to give to persons arraigned in his court.

Thousands of volumes of Scriptures in Braille and in other embossed systems for the blind were sent out. It was announced that the entire Bible in embossed form is now available in English, Japanese, German, Arabic and Welsh.

During the year, for the first time, the New Testament was published in Cherokee for the Indians of Oklahoma and Montana. It was reported that the Scripture has now been translated into 954 languages and dialects, the entire Bible having been translated into 175 languages and the New Testament into 374.

Wesley Fesler, Ohio State all-American coaching at Harvard, says rubbing shaving soap on the outside of the sole of the sweat socks will prevent footblisters and basketballers, tennisers and other competing in "sneakers."

HOLLYWOOD SIGHTS & SOUNDS

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD — Gold-diggers of the chorus may have become a movie institution, the backbone of an annual extravaganza, but in real life the term "gold-digger" is anathema. Chorus girls may use it jokingly, but it's usually a case of "Smile when you say that, stranger!"

Frances Grant, youthful, pretty, once of Ziegfeld's Follies and recently ingenue lead in Will Rogers' "Doubting Thomas," willingly goes to bat on the question.

"Nowadays chorus girls are working girls," she declares. "I'm serious. It annoys me to have people lift their eyebrows when show girls are mentioned. I've seen too many nice girls go hungry rather than listen to the honeyed words of some Broadway Casanova.

A Hard Row To Hoe

"Of course I don't know how it was before the depression, because I was in high school then, but now many girls working in the choruses come from the nicest families, and have gone into show business only because financial difficulties at home have forced them to earn their own living. Many of them even hold down two jobs at once, in order to take care of jobless relatives. One friend of mine supported a family of seven. She danced in 'Hotcha' and at the same time had a job in the dinner and supper revues at the Hollywood restaurant on Broadway. Only a girl with real character would undertake such a task.

"And don't think it isn't a difficult row to hoe. Broadway chorus girls don't get paid during rehearsals, you know, and often some of the girls have little or nothing to eat, just when they are dancing all day and need good food most. If a girl comes through an ordeal of that sort she must be all right."

Frances Grant is new to Hollywood, having come in with the new year. She was born in Roxbury, Mass., lives in Summerville, same state. She started dancing for a living after high school there, played ingenue roles in stock, then danced her way to Broadway opportunity.

Alone In A Crowd

Socially adjusted though they are supposed to be, with all the graces and grace notes of charm, movie stars are frequently "alone in a crowd."

Queen Berengaria took a lonely walk the other day—and poor Loretta Young, in this solitary scene of "The Crusades," was utterly alone, except for: Cecil B. DeMille, four men manning the camera truck, a microphone gang, DeMille's two stenographers and three assistants, three men with rakes to manicure the lawn after each rehearsal, a script girl, four men with whistles, a make-up man, two wardrobe people, and 20-odd others.

Cooperation, the keynote of the modern farmer, is also becoming a reality with the modern country storekeeper. In sections of the state and country, the storekeepers are organizing.

PREVIEWED

Today

Broadway: "Star of Midnight". Again William Powell does the suave mannerisms of a big city man-about-town, and in the role of a hard-drinking, work neglecting private detective, he straightens out the tangled affairs of several lives without undue exertion on his part. Copied closely after "The Thin Man", this sophisticated drama has the same punch, the same clever dialogue, and as much fancy drinking as one could ask for, and it also has the pert Ginger Rogers playing opposite Mr. Powell. The show is one of the most lively of the current talkies, a rather glorified expose of crime and rackets. The suspense in this picture is well maintained but it is the acting that puts the show into the better class. Paul Kelly, Ralph Morgan, J. Farrell MacDonald and Leslie Fenton are also featured.

Orpheum: "Rumba" and "Under Pressure". George Raft and Carole Lombard do some smooth stepping in the opening film and the musical score of the film is exceptional. It's the story of a small time dancer and his rise to fame. It lacks realism but it proves to be enjoyable and rhythmic entertainment. "Under Pressure" describes how men work and live in construction work under water and the show is highly dramatic and often humorous in the rough and tumble comedy of Edmund Lowe and Victor McLaglen.

Kingston: "Love In Bloom" and "In Spite of Danger". The first is a love story set to the music of Gordon and Ravel with Joe Morrison, the screen's new singing sensation, warbling love songs to Dixie Lee, who is Mrs. Bing Crosby in real life. It's mostly about a carnival dancer who wins the boy of her dreams despite the handicaps that stand in the way. And George Burns and Gracie Allen furnish the comedy as they stumble and mumble through several hilarious reels to make the film a real laugh treat. "In Spite of Danger" has about every dangerous circumstance in it that a movie could possibly possess, with shootings, crack-ups, races, fights and explosions all thrown in to keep the action moving. The cast offers Wallace Ford and Marian Marsh.

Tomorrow

Broadway: Same.

Orpheum: "Texas Terror" and "Gilded Lily." The first is a melodrama with John Wayne heading the players, a story of southwestern bad men wherein the hero thwarts them at every turn. "Golded Lily" is the tale of a small time big city girl who is rocketed to fame through some well planned publicity. It has many laughs, some clever lines and a cast that includes Claudette Colbert and Fred MacMurray.

Kingston: "Stolen Harmony." A world famous band adds an ex-convict to its roster of players. While on tour, the band is kidnaped and action occurs each moment until the tangled affairs are straightened out. This show is grand entertainment, with music by Ben Bernie and his orchestra, some of the funniest gags one could ask for and a fine cast headed by George Raft and Grace Bradley. There are also several cleverly arranged dances and the direction of Alfred Werker is exceptional. Lloyd Nolan, a newcomer, almost runs away with the acting honors.

300 FROM ULSTER IN CATHOLIC CHARITIES DRIVE

Approximately five hundred Ulster county men and women, members of the 19 Catholic parishes, are making a door to door and floor to floor canvass of the county for funs for the Catholic Charities of the Archdiocese of New York. Organized in teams under lay chairmen in each parish, the canvassers will attempt to meet and talk with every Catholic family in Ulster county during the week of the appeal which opened last Sunday and will continue through next Sunday.

The general direction of the work in Ulster county is under the Very Rev. John J. Stanley, V. F., St. May's Church, 160 Broadway, Kingston, who is the Ulster County district manager for the appeal. Solicitors will emphasize the fact that contributions may be made in instalments and that no immediate cash outlay is essential.

The 212 agencies of the Catholic Charities are distributed throughout the seven counties and the three boroughs of New York city which comprise the archdiocese. Last year, through their administration, more than $1,250,000 was expended for the care of the sick, relief or depression afflicted families, protection of children, shelter for the aged and summer vacations for needy mothers and children.

Of the total sum devoted to the work in 1934, near $750,000 was contributed by 184,000 parishoners in the 370 parishes, an average of about four dollars for each contribution.

The need for continuance of the work of private charity and relief organizations in cooperation with the relief programs of the state and nation was emphasized by Cardinal Hayes, Harry L. Hopkins, Federal Relief Administrator, and former Governor Alfred E. Smith in talks to parish pastors and lay chairmen at the Hotel Commodore, New York city, at the inauguration of the appeal last Saturday.

"Yes indeed . . .

a modern kitchen does make a difference in my housework"

"It's more than the appearance of this kitchen that has changed. This new gas range helps me to get meals in about half the usual time. Another mighty important item is the automatic water-heater that you don't even see. It provides all the hot water I need to make cleaning jobs easier, everything from washing dishes to scrubbing floors.

"Yes, this handy work space and these convenient storage cabinets are great, but don't forget the gas and electric services. They are really the life of the modern kitchen."

YOUR hopes for a thoroughly modern kitchen may be realized with the aid of our Modernizing Bureau. We have a wealth of valuable information on planning and on financing the modernizing job. We will gladly share it with you without any cost or obligation on your part. Call our city office and ask for the Modernizing Bureau.

Today Was Made For You

What matters whether rain or shine?
What care you what the place or clime?
Today was made for you.
The cloud that lingers in the sky,
The sun that's smiling from on high,
Will bless you e'er the day goes by—
Today was made for you!

Pretty Stallholder (at charity bazaar)—Won't you buy this lovely manicure set?

The man (glancing carelessly at the dainty article and deciding it would be rather expensive)—Well, I'm afraid it would be of little use to me.

Pretty Stallholder (pleading)—But won't you buy it for the woman you love?

The Man (for a moment thinking he was properly caught, then having a brilliant idea)—I couldn't do that. You see, I'm married.

If a machine does the work of two men, that is progress. If a man does it, he is keeping some poor guy out of a job.

Folks who are getting tired of listening to some of the "squawking" over the radio, and are longing to hear some real music, should drive out in the vicinity of a swamp these evenings. The frogs are starting up their spring concerts and making the welkin ring with their old-time melodies. There's nothing quite so fascinating in the spring as the "frog pond chorus." And there's no advertising chatter to listen to.

Head Warden—Ten prisoners have broken out, sir.

Governor—Have you given the alarm?

Head Warden—I sent for the doctor. He thinks it's measles.

There are still many folks who sow their wild oats without apparently realizing that the threshing costs will have to be paid.

Son—Daddy, I need an encyclopedia for school.

Father — Encyclopedia nothing; you can walk to school like I did.

She had priced nearly everything on the ten cent counter, and the salesman was growing a little weary of his customer. At length she reached for a bunch of wire tea strainers and asked:

Customer—Land! What's them for?

Salesman—Those are muzzles for sausages, ma'am, to keep them from biting each other.

The Girl Next Door says that she has found that stockings often give a girl a run for her money.

Man—Well, George, how do you like my new house?

Friend—I like the house very much, but what a queer name you have chosen for it—Thistledome.

Man—That's not the way to pronounce it. It's "This'll do me."

The meanest fellow in the world is the one who busts right into the middle of a good radio program to state the good qualities of prunes.

Judge—Guilty or not guilty?

Rastus—Not guilty, suh!

Judge—Have you ever been in jail?

Rastus—No, suh, I never stole nuthin' before.

Just now this country may be described as a lot of poor people sitting around listening to a lot of tall talkers, who can't deliver on a single one of their grotesque and picturesque promises.

NEWS OF
The World
ON WHEELS

A new and brutal method of testing motor cars has recently been inaugurated by Studebaker engineers. As a result citizens of Indiana and Illinois towns and villages have been treated to some unusual thrills and the tests have become so exciting that national news reel photographers have made motion pictures of the stunts. Following the introduction of Studebaker's 1935 "miracle ride" cars, the engineers sought a driving surface that would be rougher and more punishing than any of the washboard roads on Studebaker's famous proving ground. So they took to the railroad roadbeds, not to the rails, but the tie. For two months Studebakers have been rolling down the ties, sometimes in the company of special trains and sometimes alone, taking switches, frogs, cross-tracks, bridges and trestles with equal ease and at high speeds.

The return of the farmer as an active buying prospect has been a stronger factor in automobile sales increases this year, according to H. G. Moock, vice president of the Plymouth Motor Corporation. Mr. Moock has been visiting dealers throughout the midwest and south. He reported this week that virtually all of the automotive merchants in the agricultural districts have increased their business this spring, with the farm demand playing a big part in the sales gains.

General Motors will spend $2,500,000 in the next few months upon expansion of production facilities for Pontiac automobiles at Pontiac, Mich. Expansion of the Fisher Body Corporation plant which supplies bodies for the Pontiac car will cost $2,500,000. In addition $1,000,000 will be spent in enlarging the Pontiac motor division plant. The enlargement will include new buildings, machinery and equipment. Construction work has been started.

A death rate of only 9.4 per 1,000 was recorded for the first three months of this year among the millions of industrial policyholders of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company. This marks a drop of 2.6 per cent as compared with the first quarter of 1934, which was the record health year of all time, among this large cross-section of the general populations of the United States and Canada. This experience gives good ground for the hope that the present year will set a new low mortality record for this class.

Honest . . .
is there any difference in Gasolines?
Uncle Sam says, "Yes!"

Uncle Sam, unlike some prominent people, won't endorse a single product. But he does know exactly what goes into different brands of gasolines, because that's how he taxes them. When it comes to Tydol, Sam says, "Ho! Guess I'll have to soak you fellows twice! Once, because Tydol is a swell gasoline, and once, for the fine lubricant it contains."

But we don't mind that double tax, because Tydol does a double job. First, it runs your motor better than other gasolines. And second, it keeps it running better. For the special lubricant (also a carbon-solvent) that is blended into every gallon of Tydol gives your motor extra top-cylinder lubrication that is vital to smooth performance and long life.

Remember how you were advised to mix lubricating oil with your gasoline in breaking in your new motor? Well, Tydol gives you that ideal combination, not just for the first 1,000 miles, but for every mile you drive . . . and gives it to you at no extra cost.

NOTE: TYDOL pays Uncle Sam an extra tax because it contains a special top-cylinder lubricant...yet Tydol, the gasoline that actually lubricates as it drives, does not cost a penny extra.

PATTERN 5361

Alice Brooks, always alert to the newest in needlework, has designed this jiffy-knit that is as flattering in line as it is lacy. Besides being done quickly, it uses very little wool, and that, of course, is aways an attractive feature. The design is the same lovely lacy, pattern throughout, except the frilled collar which adds contrast as well as grace to the entire blouse. The puff sleeves are most attractive. A plain knitted skirt is most attractive with this blouse.

In pattern 5361 you will find complete instructions for making the blouse shown in a size 16 to 18 and a size 38 to 40 (all given in the one pattern) and for a plain knitted skirt in these sizes; an illustration of the blouse and of the stitches needed; material requirements.

To obtain this pattern send 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) to the Kingston Daily Freeman Household Arts Dept., 259 W. 14th street, New York, N. Y.

Fast driving is supposed to be modern. Any price, even life itself, is not too high to be up-to-date.

BARBARA BELL FASHION PATTERNS

Pattern No. 1653-B

Morning Dress for Not-So-Slender Figures

Shawl collars topping low V necklines are the prettiest finish a wrap-around housedress can have, and for Summer no type is comparable to it for comfort and neatness.

The sketch shows a design that will please all housewives.

Set-in sleeves are more satisfactory than other types if you actually intend to be active in your clothes. The ones featured here are slashed on the outside so that the possibility of strain is removed.

A trim, well-fitted appearance is achieved by darts over the bustline and a panel treatment in the back. The skirt is given extra width at the bottom by the side pleats at the bottom.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1653-B is designed in sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, 50 and 52: Size 36 requires 4¾ yards of 36 inch material.

MODES OF THE MOMENT

The latest costumes for playtime at the beach or summer resort are practically smart and practical this season in both women's and juvenile modes. May of these costumes comprise two or more pieces and a considerable number of the models include a matching skirt that buttons up the front—ideal to wear to the playground, then remove the skirt and one is ready to romp in earnest.

In the sketch above at left is shown a play costume in three-piece effect for women, fashioned of Tahitian print in navy blue with large white floral pattern. The fitted halter is bust defining and the bloomers are attached. The matching short skirt buttons at the side.

At the right is pictured a junior's play costume of red and white checked cotton broadcloth, with action pleated shorts and separate wrap-around, front-buttoned skirt to match. It is fashioned after the grown-up manner with club collar, patch pocket, cape sleeves and fastens with large, white buttons.

The shorts, too, are patterned after the grown-up styles in that they are nat fastened to the halter, being buttoned snugly at the hip. The shorts may therefore be worn with other halters if desired.

FLASHES OF LIFE SKETCHED IN BRIEF

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Money by the Ton.

Pottsville, Pa.—A ton and a half of "cartwheels" jingled today in the pockets of 1,800 shirt workers of the Phillips-Jones Company.

The $50,000 payroll was distributed in silver dollars in sturdy cloth bags instead of the usual paper envelopes. Officials explained they wanted to hasten the return of the funds to circulation.

Ballad of Reading Gaol.

Reading, Pa.—No more shall a tip to the jail barber bring an extra spray of hair tonic or sweet smelling lilac to Berks county prison inmates.

All tipping was ordered abolished yesterday by the board in inspectors after a report denounced the practice, which it was said extended even to the laundry.

Impeding Progress.

Council Bluffs, Ia.—Three kittens held up movement of freight cars in the railroad yards here yesterday while four rialroad men jacked up a tank car and rescued them. They had gone bumming in a berth of their own making under the car. A roundhouse crew adopted them.

"The Apple of Her Eye".

Chicago—Mrs. Nellie Radigan was in domestic relations court and said, speaking of her husband, William:

"He was the apple of my eye, but I had to have the gold fillings melted out of my teeth to buy coffee and doughnuts".

The judge ordered him to give his wife $6 a week as soon as he finds work.

OL' ROCKIN' CHAIR MAY GET SPEAKERS FROM NOW ON

Oklahoma City (AP)—Speaker Leon C. Phillips of the Oklahoma house of representatives wants to end the house custom of presenting the speaker with his desk and chair at the session end.

"You might as well give him a farm or a home and his wife a pension," said Representative Sandy Singleton in successfully opposing the usual presentation. "The practice is illegal and the speaker doesn't want to break the law."

One of our friends who went up to Washington on a little business with the government says that he was sent to 15 different departments in 14 different buildings but didn't see a single inch of that official red tape they talk so much about.

"HEALTH COURSE!"

"Exercise counts plenty! But I certainly hand Shredded Wheat lots of credit for helping me show a perfect score card on health."

Crisp, delicious Shredded Wheat is a store house of health and energy. Gives Nature's vital health elements in their most appetizing and digestible form.

"—Give Us This Day...Forgive Us Our Debts..."

Attention of the government is being focused upon the needy share-croppers of Arkansas, shown above. Left, children of these destitute families are pictured as they repeated their prayers before partaking of a scant meal. Right, a typical group was caught by a cameraman, from the number of those banded at Sherrill in an effort to avoid evictions and protect themselves from their debtors. (Associated Press Photos)

ONCE, when you lived closer together, you were such good friends. Now that they're away in another town—too near to write and too far to see very often—you're gradually forgetting. But why? You have a telephone!

It's so easy to give them a "ring". Ask them over for the evening or a week-end. The rates are low—on station-to-station calls to the more distant places the rates are generally reduced about 40% after 8:30 p.m.

If the town you want isn't included in the list, the operator will give you the rate—and if you don't know the out-of-town number, just call "Information".

Typical station-to-station rates after 8:30 p.m. from

Will Study Politics At National Capital

Gilbert W. Wright of Gardiner, a student at Colgate University, has been honored by being selected as one of 12 Colgate students who will go to Washington next September and spend until February 1, 1936, in studying the workings of political parties and government at the national capital.

This will be a real "laboratory course" in politics and government and so far as possible each student will be given an "internship" under some official, so that he may have practical experience in learning just how the government functions.

The students are outstanding men in the department and were chosen because they had shown unusual interest in government and politics. They will live together in Washington, discuss in seminars the work they are doing and will receive 15 hours credit for the course.

This is said to be the first time an American college has made arrangements for such a course.

Card and Bunco Party.

A newspaper is asking people which they'd rather have—$10,000 in hand or $10 a week for the rest of their lives. Omar Khayyam gave the answer: "Ah, take the cash and let the credit go."

They are Albert Cassidy of Portland, Ore., and Milton Rutherford of Brooklyn. Assistant District Attorney Peter J. Naples said both men admitted their part in the holdup. IN HEART BALM BATTLE

The $250,000 alienation of affections suit of F. Brandon Smith, Jr. (left), against his millionaire father-in-law, Joe E. Cannon (right), in Charlotte, N. C., pivoted on a motion to throw it out of court. After Smith had charged Cannon caused a marital rift with his wife, the former Anne Cannon, the defense claimed to have financed the marriage as well as advising an attempt at adjustment when differences arose. Paris, May 9 (AP).—The mammoth new French liner Normandie radioed today she had attained a speed of 24 knots without any noticeable strain and with a list of only five degrees on a trial run. The Normandie's maiden voyage to the United States starts May 29.

GET UP AT NIGHT?

THE kidneys are the scavengers and they work day and night in separating the poisons from the blood. A diuretic stimulant is often indicated and usually it is sufficient to relieve minor kidney irregularities. Read what Harry F. Reynolds of 40 Littell Ave., Buffalo, N. Y., says: "At times my kidneys would disturb my rest at night. I would have to get up three or four times. I took Dr. Pierce's Anuric Tablets and I had no further trouble with my kidneys." All druggists.

Send 10c to Dr. Pierce's Clinic, Buffalo, N. Y., for a trial package of Anuric. Ask for our free booklet which describes Pierce's Invalids Hotel. —Adv.

CLOROX CLEANLINESS IS HYGIENIC CLEANLINESS

It's the plus value in Clorox that completes its magic. As it works it disinfects—an added safeguard to health. This is particularly important in the laundering of baby's white cottons and linens and rubber garments, or when cold-infested handkerchiefs and sick-room linens become a part of the family wash. FREEMAN WANT ADS BRING RESULTS!

THE AMERICAN FARMER IN 1935

Kansas Grower "Plumb Sick" of AAA

Seventh in a series of eight articles.

By Zachary Taylor

Spring Hill, Kas. (AP)—Charles F. Phegley, middle-aged "emperor" of 600 fertile Kansas acres is just "putting his hopes in the ground this spring."

He is a stocky, square built man in a flopping felt hat. His red cheeks speak of blizzards and dust storms and so do his eyes with their twinkling squint. And, as he squints down freshly planted corn rows, this veteran of 30 harvests sings no spring song, but the thrill of the new season is within him and he admits it.

"Better off than a year ago? No, not particularly. No money then; no money now. Not much change in farming for three years. Me and the rest of the farmers are living on hopes. They look good—always do in the spring."

Didn't Sign Up.

There is no government loan on the farm; the broad acres are not contracted to the government for wheat or corn reduction this year. Phegley's pigs, he comments, are not on the "birth control basis".

"I signed for 10 per cent corn acreage reduction last year", he continues. "I didn't sign up when they came around about it this year. I'm plumb sick of the AAA, PWA, CWA, and all the other A's.

"I'd like to see everybody get a job—so they can eat what they need or want, so they can wear what they should—that's when farming is going to get better.

"Sure farm markets are up—high. Back when wheat went to 28 cents I figured I'd better feed it. I ground it up for hogs. The hogs lost me money and I didn't get a dime for my wheat. Now with shorts at $1.90 and corn at $1.10, how can I feed it?"

Feeds His Grain.

Can't he make money by selling the grain? He smiles tolerantly.

"I never did sell a bushel of corn or oats I didn't have to. If I had 500 bushels of corn right now, I'd probably try to find some stock to feed it to. That's farming.

"The farmer who makes a living—keeps his debts paid, eats regular and has a few dollars for some things for the missus and kids and for overalls—is doing pretty well even on 600 acres. I don't think they are doing it on a quarter section."

Every morning, Charles F. Phegley saddles "Dot", and starts an inspection tour of his 600 acres. After 30 harvests, Phegley believes that farming is mostly "letting nature take its course".

Each morning one of the two hired men saddles "Dot", Phegley's Hamiltonian "mixture" mare, for his tour of inspection. She stays saddled all day.

Nature Takes Its Course.

"He's "up to his ears" in work. There are the spring lambs in the big pasture where 185 sheep are grazed; his Chester White and Duroc sows are farrowing, and the corn planting is on. Mrs. Phegley's chickens didn't do so well in the drought. They sold them last fall. The other day he brought her 300 chicks from a hatchery. They butchered last winter for meat; Mrs. Phegley had some canned stuff, and the cows amply supplied the table with milk.

Phegley philosophizes: "Times have been better by about $8,000 to $10,000 a year. I've seen worse, too. So, after about 30 years of it a fellow sort of gets the idea that farming is mostly letting nature take its course".

Woodstock School District Meeting Votes Three Trustees

Henry Peper was voted to act as chairman of the meeting.

The minutes of the last meeting were read for information only by Clerk Neher, the clerk. Mr. Peper then declared the meeting open for the evening's business.

The trustee's report given by Howard Bell, trustee, the collector's report given by Bruce Herrick, and the auditor's report given by George Riseley, chairman of that committee, were read, then accepted by the meeting.

These reports showed the following:

After the reports George A. Neher made a resolution that School District No. 2, having increased to a size that requires the renting of an additional room, that three trustees be elected instead of one as previously. Of the 77 votes cast on this motion, 60 were for the resolution and 17 against.

Nominations were then made for the three trustees, collector and clerk.

Nominees for one year were Aaron Hasbrouck and Clyde Elwyn. Of the 76 votes cast 54 were for Aaron Hasbrouck and 20 for Clyde Elwyn, thus electing Aaron Hasbrouck. George Neher, Fred Mower and Harold Lape were nominated for two years. The first vote was 28 for Neher, 24 for Mower, and 15 for Lape. On the second vote 33 were for Mower and 27 for Neher, thus electing Fred Mower as trustee for two years. As there was only one nominee for trustee for three years a motion was made and carried that the clerk cast one vote for Carl Eric Lindin. The collector, Bruce Herrick, was reelected in like manner and Howard Bell cast a ballot to re-elect Clark Neher for clerk. A motion was made and carried to raise $6,000 for the ensuing fiscal year. Last year's auditing committee, George Riseley, Victor Lasher and Walter Hastie was reappointed by the chairman. A motion was made and carried that the trustees shall have the power to call special meetings by posting five notices in public places. A vote of thanks was given to Mr. Bell for his services as trustee. As all important business had been completed the meeting was adjourned.

Gives Opinion on Highland Gymnasium

Highland, May 9.—The needs of a new gymnasium for the school are so acute that state building inspector Coons had been here and looked over the grounds adjacent to the school building and conferred with the committee, Imbrie Richards and William H. Maynard. Since Mr. Maynard was not able to be present at the May meeting of the school trustees Friday evening a complete report was not made. Mr. Hickson of the state department is also to be consulted, but present plans include a frame building to be erected at some place on the school grounds.

Dr. Carl F. Meekin was present and reported on the analysis of the water in the well which is used in the building as being pure. Principal Herbert Campbell asked for diplomas this year in the form of booklets and also that a larger amount of drinking cups and towels be ordered. The school enrollment had increased and the supply estimated in the past was used up.

The excavation for the sewer crossed one corner of the athletic field, using a smaller territory than was expected and the work was reported as well done and quickly closed. It was reported that the sagging floor in the assembly hall had been supported. While this condition was not dangerous it needed to be repaired.

Dr. V. P. Salvatore and Arthur B. Merritt were present and asked that the school trustees again sponsor the Boy Scouts, since it must be done by some civic body. The request was not granted for the present, although the Troop have the use of the gymnasium for their meetings. It was made known that the committee on vacancies is about ready to make their report and that a special meeting would be called soon for it. Mrs. J. D. Rose, president, presided and present were A. W. Lent and C. Imbrie Richards.

School Meeting.

Clintondale, May 9.—The annual school meeting for District No. 11, town of Plattekill, was held on Tuesday evening in the school house, when the following were elected: Trustee for three years, Harry Jenkins; collector, Carrie Ackhart; clerk, Miss Isadora Livingston. The budget for the year was fixed at $8,748. Appropriation for transportation was figured at $1,800, this to vary according to the number of children going to Highland High School.

No More Piles

Doctor's Prescription Guaranteed

Thousands of Pile sufferers do not know that the cause of Piles is internal—bad circulation of blood in the lower bowel.

This is the scientific truth about Piles—the real reason why salves and suppositories do not give lasting relief, why cutting does not remove the cause.

Your itching, bleeding or protruding Piles will only go when you actually remove the cause. External treatments can't do this—an internal medicine should be used. HEM-ROID, the prescription of Dr. J. S. Leonhardt, sold by good druggists everywhere, succeeds because it stimulates the circulation, drives out congested blood, heals and restores the affected parts.

So why waste time on external remedies or worry about an operation when McBride Drug Stores invite every Pile sufferer to try HEM-ROID with guarantee of money back if not joyfully satisfied with the help one bottle gives.—Adv.

Program for Ulster County Home Bureau

The Ulster County Home Bureau will hold its annual advisory council at the Eagle Hotel, Main street, Kingston, on Wednesday, May 15, at 10 a. m.

This meeting is held at this time every year to report on results of Home Bureau activities of preceding year and plan for the coming year.

Great strides have been made in nutritional work in connection with improving health throughout the county, such as school lunches, etc.

Household management has included re-arranged kitchens for convenience. Better Homes in America has honored Ulster county and Miss Evelyn Nance with a merit award for progress in home improvements in 1934.

Landscaping has made marked steps for improvement scenically and one of our Home Bureau members won a state prize for her work in landscaping.

Library workers in rural communities are proud of Mrs. Willard Jenkins, of New Paltz, who has done splendid organization work as well as broadcasting on this subject.

The clothing project has gone forward and if Ulster county women look more stylish than heretofore it is because they have had Mrs. Evelyn Tobey, Columbia College stylist, to tell them how for several years past and Miss Morehouse from Cornell, to help with the means to the end.

Our legislative chairman has kept us informed on legislative matters which concern women, also marketing of home grown products of the farm.

As part of the recreational program being carried on, a program of dance and song was held at Lake Minnewaska last year when the Ulster County Home Bureau was hostess to extensioners from all parts of the country. A recreational council was formed which holds meetings each month in the interest of a bigger and better recreational program.

An invitation is extended to all interested to attend this meeting May 15.

28 Children Drowned.

Kharkoff, U. S. S. R., May 9 (AP).—Twenty-eight children were drowned in the river Psiol today after a leaky ferryboat in which they were making an excursion filled with water and foundered. Thirty others swam ashore.

Officials Search Hills.

Matanzas, Cuba, May 9 (AP).—Army officials scoured the hills today in search of associates of the radical leader Antonio Guiteras, former Cuban cabinet officer, whose death from army bullets was credited by an unimpeachable source with thwarting a miniature revolt.

Interesting Talks At Republican School

with efficiency and that with such an economic system as we have. The annoyance of this relief business continues and who can say when it will end. Often those who receive feel that they have not been given enough, while those who must provide the relief feel that they have been given too much. In order to handle this difficult matter, four outstanding men in the community, recognized for their ability and integrity, had been chosen as the heads of our relief organization. The state administration considers that we have one of the best in the state relief departments and one of the best managed.

The New Charter

The mayor also spoke of the latest effort of the administration, in the form of attempting to provide a new charter for the city, which will be voted upon in July. There were already questionings heard as to the great cost of such a special election, but $1,300 would cover all such expense including the printing of the charter for distribution to voters, and already provision for such expense had been made in the budget. The new charter is not a Republican or Democratic affair but a matter for the betterment of the entire city, for Democrats and Republicans alike. The centralizing of our city government calls for a modern charter in place of the antiquated one under which we labor with difficulty. Mayor Heiselman expressed the opinion that the securing of this new charter was largely up to the intelligent women of the city, who would make it their business as good housekeepers of the city to become fully acquainted with that charter and then help in the educating of our people so that they would be arounsed to its needs and privileges for the city.

National Issues

The last speaker of the afternoon was Mrs. Moore, who spoke more particularly on national issues. She considered this next year but a dress rehearsal in efficiency and effectiveness for the coming election in 1936. She said that two and a half years ago we sold our birthright for a mess of pottage. We wanted to get out of the depression which was the result of the World War. We were impatient and not willing to undertake a steady climb back to prosperity. As a result we had a change in leadership. In spite of promises we have today two million more unemployed than we had at the beginning of the administration. We are paying terribly for our mess of pottage. In the south the good Democrats are becoming terribly puzzled, especially the farmers, over what Washington has done to them, in repeatedly destroying their cotton crops so that Russian grass is coming up in its place and the value of the land will be greatly decreased. Negroes who had worked comfortably in the country for a dollar a day are now crowding into the towns of the south and living on the dole. Only southerners can fully appreciate the menace of idle negroes in great numbers. Moreover, Washington is changing its rulings daily. In the west where six million hogs have been killed the price of meat is so high that they are sending east and buying fish in great quantities for food. It is not common sense. Mrs. Moore continued to enumerate promises of betterment repudiated. Last week the President refused to take the advice of the business men of the National Chamber of Commerce, which includes some of the ablest minds of the country.

Some of the men who had been boys who visited Franklin Roosevelt as a boy at Hyde Park, find him not different from the boy who insisted that all games be played as he wanted to play them and who insisted upon never being "it".

The First Body.

Speaking of the First Lady of the land, Mrs. Moore erpressed what so many women feel, that had Mrs. Smith been in the White House we would have had a big-hearted woman, mistress of her home, a devoted wife and mother as the First Lady of the Land rather than such a figure-head as we have there now.

The president is a very astute politician and the theorists whom he has gathered about him have not been elected nor can we remove them. Roosevelt feels no responsibility to the voters in his appointments. Should he be given a "vote of confidence" in 1936 we will part with our form of government and in its place we will have Communism and Dictatorship.

In closing Mrs. Moore emphasized the necessity of increasing and developing just such clubs of Republican women as she was addressing and urged those present not to fall back on any sense of security that might weaken their vigilance in fighting for the Republican standards. Our success at the polls this fall will be vastly important if we wish to have in the future a government that will be safe for our children and where we can once more answer in the affirmative "We Do", to the question "Who Owns America".

After Mrs. Moore's stirring talk, Mr. Eltinge spent some time in giving the women some very real and pertinent lessons in "Republicanism"; and the meeting adjourned.

BUSINESS GIRLS HEAR ABOUT "MODERN STAGING"

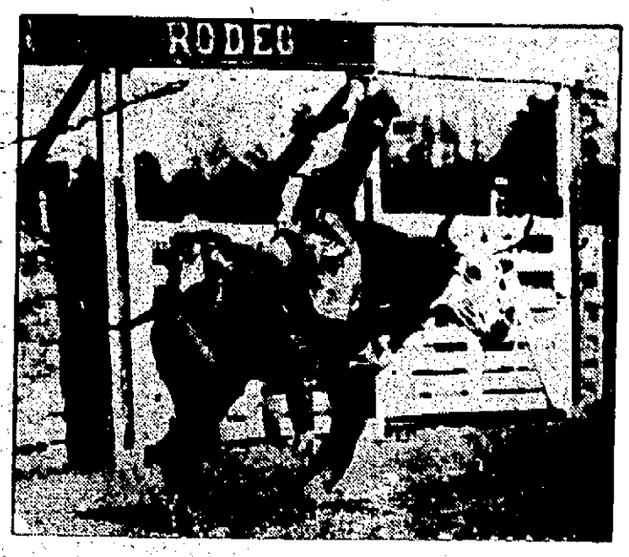
There was an excellent attendance at the Business Girls' supper at the Y. W. C. A. on Wednesday evening. The announcements following the supper were regarding the "Mother and Daughter Banquet" next Wednesday afternoon when each daughter who is a member of the club is expected to bring her mother with her or to borrow a mother to bring as her guest. On that same evening the Y. W. C. A. will hold Open House, to which the public is invited. At 8 o'clock the Young Married Woman's Club will present the play, "Her Crowning Glory", and the Business Girls the play, "Mrs. Oakley's Telephone". No admission will be charged. The speaker for last evening was one of the talented members of the club, Miss Emily Hoysradt, who held the closest and most interested attention of those present as she talked to them about "Modern Staging". She told of the marvelous and intricate mechanics of our staging, about the beautiful and wierd lighting effects. Of equal interest was what she had to tell about outstanding stage men of today, of their salaries which are never overmuch and of their ambitions. Miss Hoysradt also told of the staging of The Great Waltz with the revolving stage.

Payroll Stolen Today.

Chicago, May 9 (AP).—Five robbers, three of them in police uniforms, marched briskly into the West Taylor street plant of the Edison General Electric Appliance Company today and seized $2,809 just delivered for the payroll. Witnesses said the five arrived in an automobile bearing the word "Police" on the sides. Guards were on duty outside the plant offices, at 5601 West Taylor street, but the gang was admitted when their leader announced they were on hand to investigate a robbery.

Note this slight difference between a driver's license and a hunting license. There is no open season for pedestrians.

Wild Horse Brahma



One of the big thrills to be seen at the Rodeo, the above shows big Wild Horse Brahma, one of the Brahma Twins coming out of the chutes on Lightning a nationally known Long Horned Texas steer, these steers have the playful habit of attacking the rider after they throw him, that is if they do throw him, before the rider can regain his feet and get out of the way, of course there are cowboys on horse back who's duty it is to protect the rider if he falls. This and many other thrills will be seen at the New State Armory when the JE Ranch open for a four day run from May 15 to 18 inclusive, under the auspices of the Joyce-Schirick Post No. 11386, Veterans of Foreign Wars, for the benefit of the building fund.

City Assessor Moore Making Annual Tour

Making Annual Inspection Preparatory to Laying Assessments—Horse and Buggy Used in Former Years Is Out of Picture and Tour Is Being Made by Car.

City Assessor George W. Moore has commenced the work of inspecting properties in the city preparatory to laying the assessments on which properties will be taxed next year. It is not expected that there will be any increase in assessments this year.

City Assessor Moore stated today that householders who had contemplated having their properties repainted or minor repairs made should not hold up the work as he will not increase an assessment on a property where such improvements are being made. Mr. Moore said that he and the other city authorities realized that there had been a depreciation in the value of real estate due to the depression, and that fact would result assessments, as a whole, remaining about the same as at present.

As one of the economy measures that Mayor Heiselman adopted last year to reduce the tax rate no appropriation was made as usual for the hiring of a horse and wagon to convey the assessor about town on his tour of inspections and he is using his own car in making the usual field survey.

If the general drift to sales taxes keeps on, what will happen to sales?

A VICTORY FOR THE BONUS

Highly pleased, Senator Thomas (D-Okla.), left, and Representative Patman (D-Tex.) discuss their victory a few minutes after the senate passed the Patman bonus bill 55 to 33. Thomas sent the bill through the upper house. It would give over two billion dollars to 3,500,000 World war veterans—but it has yet to be signed by President Roosevelt, and a veto is expected. Rev. A. E. Oudemool Installed as Pastor Of First Dutch Church

The installation of the Rev. Arthur Edwin Oudemool as pastor of the First Reformed Church of Kingston took place Wednesday evening and was attended by a large audience. Many members of Mr. Oudemool's recent charges were present, as also many friends from distant points. Mr. and Mrs. Martin Oudemool and daughter, parents and sister of the new pastor, came from Holland, Mich., to be present on this notable occasion.

The Rev. Eugene C. Duryee, temporary clerk of the Classis of Ulster, presided and read the form of installation. The order of service was as follows:

Organ prelude—Finale to Third Symphony . . . . . Mendelssohn
W. Whiting Fredenburgh, organist
Doxology
Invocation and Salutation . . . . . The Rev. Eugene C. Duryee
Anthem—How Lovely Are the Messengers, from "St. Paul" . . . . . Mendelssohn
Choir
Scripture lesson—The Rev. Edgar T. DeGraff, Keyport, N. J.
Prayer—The Rev. Cornelius Van Tol, Stone Ridge
Hymn
Installation Sermon—The Rev. Dr. Frank B. Seeley, Fair Street Reformed Church

Mrs. Benjamin W. Johnston
Office of Installation . . . . . The Rev. Eugene C. Duryee
Hymn
Charge to the pastor—The Rev. John B. Steketee, Classical Missionary Charge to the Congregation — The Rev. Charles L. Palmer of Kingston
Hymn
Benediction—
The Rev. Arthur E. Oudemool

The Rev. Dr. Frank B. Seeley preached a very suggestive sermon, taking as his text I Corinthians 14: 8—"For if the trumpet give an uncertain tone, Who shall prepare himself to battle?" He said the trumpet was an essential part of stirring prophetic appeals. It sent forth a clear, positive, penetrating tone. It was not wavering nor apologetic. Altogether too little is this clear, full-toned voice heard today, in the Christian pulpit. Something is missing as one listens to the average preacher and in the average conversation of Christian people. There is lacking the sound of the trumpet, its clear, positive, assuring note. Religion is not the subject of talk as often as it should be. There is not the religious conviction that issues in clear, certain tones. If there were, Christians would stand up for their religion more than they do. John the Baptist, Simon Peter, Paul, were men of decided convictions, although Simon Peter was at first a sorry specimen of a Christian. Christians ought to use their voices for Christ. Wrong must be condemned. It should not be wrong form to condemn wrong. Seeking after truth, we cannot be satisfied with guessing, supposing, imagining. We have the truth, in Christ who is the Truth. Having Him, one will speak positively, certainly, effectively.

In his charge to the new pastor, the Rev. J. B. Steketee spoke of the relation of this office to the church: Pastor, teacher, minister. These call forth the fine graces of patience, personal interest, courage, foresight. This office presents opportunities for presenting the Christian vision of a great Christian Church, the total enterprise of which the local church is a part. Vision and program make conquest certain. An effective Christian service is in pastoral visitation, bringing to those who cannot or are unwilling, to come to church the message of the church. William Carey has left for us a fine slogan, "Expect great things from God; undertake great things for God."

The Rev. Charles L. Palmer gave a very helpful charge to the congregation, presenting the topic of "Increasing the Efficiency of the Church." By renewing one's appreciation of the noble historic heritage; by placing greater emphasis upon the great Christian doctrines, and by supporting the means of grace this can be done, he said. The prayer meeting, the support of Christian missionary work, the revival of one's religious experiences prove this.

The special musical numbers were splendidly rendered.

The Rev. Mr. Oudemool becomes the 13th minister in the list of pastors of this old church. He is a graduate of the Reformed Church's schools. His early Christian training was in the Third Reformed Church of Holland, Mich. He was graduated from Hope College in 1930 and from the New Brunswick Theological Seminary in 1933. While in the latter institution he was the premier preacher in his class. Two years ago he was licensed by the Classis of Holland and in June of that year was ordained and installed as pastor of the Plattekill and High Woods churches of Ulster Classis, his ministry there was very fruitful. The attention of the First Church here was called to his promising service and in March he was given the call by the Kingston Church. The future is seen as very promising for this young minister.

Parent-Teacher Associations

National P.-T. A.

The annual convention of the National Congress of Parent-Teachers opened at the Biltmore Hotel, Miami, Florida, on Monday, April 29, and closed Thursday, May 3. The entire program centered about the home. The national president, Mrs. F. A. Longworthy, pointed out that the program committee believed that we must begin with the home if we are to raise the standard of American living. If we wish better schools and communities the home is the place to start to work for them. In its early days the Congress functioned in the home as the National Congress of Mothers. Its original purpose was to raise the standards of home life. The theme of this convention, 'The home, the index of National Life,' proves that the Congress has adhered to its original purpose. Some of the problems discussed were: 'How to Meet Problems Arising in the Home through Rapid Social and Economic Changes.' 'Character Education in the Home.' 'Leisure and Home Life.' 'Activities anr Projects for Home Education.' Delegates from Maine, Ohio and North Carolina exchanged ideas with those from Florida, Oregon and California and other widely separated points. The exchange was mutually stimulating and helpful. However, much discussion centered upon educational matters since P.-T. A. functions in connection with the school and many parents regard the schools as an extension of the home."

The Myrtle P.-T. A. of Massachusetts said to be the oldest P.-T. A. in the nation celebrated its 40th anniversary last fall. Its guest of honor was Miss Julia A. Callahan, its founder.

The Nebraska Parent-Teacher Associations are growing so rapidly that it has been found necessary to order 6,000 additional membership cards. In one week 1,500 were given out.

Meeting Changed

Lake Katrine, May 9—Members of the P.-T. A. are asked to take notice that the regular meeting night is changed to Monday, May 13, instead of Tuesday, when Mrs. William Anderson, county publicity chairman, will have charge of the program.

An invitation is extended to the Ruby P.-T. A. to attend and anyone of the community, whether members or not, are welcome to attend.

Mrs. Gates, Mrs. P. Boice, Mrs. H. Keator, the nominating committee, will report at this time. Mrs. R. Everett will have charge of refreshments.

YOUTH COUNCIL PARTY AT Y. W. C. A. SATURDAY

A good time is promised all the young people who attend the "Youth Party" at the Y. W. C. A. Hall on Henry street Saturday evening of this week, by the committee from Youth Council which is sponsoring the party.

A program of entertainment is being arranged which is to include some excellent local talent. Clarence S. Schoonmaker, general secretary of the local "Y", will lead the group in games. Mr. Schoonmaker is one of the finest recreational directors in the vicinity, and promises that an unusually attractive program of games will be given.

Following the recreational program, dancing will be held with a five-piece orchestra furnishing the music.

The party is open to all young people who are members of some youth group in the county. Registrations must be made with the president of Youth Council, Roger Mabie.

The purpose of the party is to bring young people together for an evening's fun under Youth Council sponsorship, and to attempt to get more young people interested in this new youth movement.

King George Requests That Empire Continue Freedom and Progress

London, May 9 (AP).—King George today told members of parliament come to congratulate him on his silver jubilee that he prayed his country could continue to pursue the cause of freedom and progress.

"In these days when fear and preparation wor war are again astir in the world," the monarch said, "let us be thankful that quiet, government and peace prevail over so large a part of the earth's surface."

King George also expressed gratitude "that under our flag of freedom so many millions eat their daily bread in far distant lands and climes with none to make them afraid."

Referring to Westminister hall where he received the lords and the members of the house ofcommons as "the very cradle of our envied parliamentary institutions," the king said:

"Here is the anvil on which our common law was forged to become the joint inheritance of the United States of America and of our own community of peoples."

The king, looking back over his 25 eventful years of reign, said the thankfulness he felt was "chiefly for escape from a danger greater than ever before threatened our lands"—the World War—in which "strength upheld the free."

The scene was colorful as King George with Queen Mary at his side, faced members of the two houses gathered in joint session in the Medieval hall intimately connected with English history and English kings for nearly nine centuries.

Viscount Sankey, lord chancellor, reading the lords' address of welcome, praised the monarch as one whose "personality made the throne not merely a symbol but a loved and living reality."

"Your majesty has called forth loyalty and love which has given a new measing to the name of king," the lord chancellor said.

After sketching briefly the history of the last quarter century, he continued:

"More truly than any of your illustrious ancestors your majesty rules over a nation of free citizens."

Captain E. A. Fitzroy, speaker of the commons, clad in full bottom wig and black and gold ceremonial robes of his office, eulogized the king, declaring: "You are more than a sovereign; you are head of the family of a nation, and of an empire you have made a household.

The loyal addresses were approved in the houses of commons and lords yesterday.

Grand Jury Finishes Work Now on Hand

The grand jury which is in attendance at the May term of supreme court has concluded the work now on hand and today adjourned until May 20. Should any additional matters come to the attention of District Attorney Cleon B. Murray prior to that date these matters will be cleared up by the present grand jury before a report is made to Justice Schirick. This is the last grand jury which will sit until next September after the usual summer vacation period of courts and Mr. Murray for that reason will hold the present grand jury in recess in order to clean up all matters so that cases will not be held over the summer recess period.

Scientists tell us that the universe will "rejuvenate itself after running down to void." Maybe we will get rid of the depression after all.

Coughlin at Cleveland Raps Federal Reserve, Eccles Banking Bill

Cleveland, May 9 (AP)—The Rev. Charles E. Coughlin, after recruiting new Ohio members for his National Union for Social Justice, gathered his forces today for an assault on the Federal Reserve System and the Eccles banking bill.

The Detroit priest told a crowd of 24,508 persons which frequently cheered his utterances here last night that the federal reserve system caused the depression "More than any other single factor."

"The National Union," he said, "xxx demands the expulsion of this prostitute, this Federal Reserve Banking System, from our midst and the establishment of a central government bank, owned by the people and controlled by the people directly through the Congress of the United States."

Speaking in the home town of Senator Robert J. Bulkley of Ohio, the Rev. Fr. Coughlin rebuked the Senator for his vote against the Patman bonus bill and predicted the end of his political career if he "does not see fit to alter his judgment."

He also criticised Senator Robert F. Wagner of New York as a "traitor to the soldiers." The priest said he would go to New York city May 22 to continue his organization campaign.

Congressmen who do not express the will of their constituents, newspapers and bankers were also assailed.

"Congressmen who are so drunk with the wine of aristocracy as to oppose the expressed will of their constituents, once that will has been made clear to them in no uncertain manner, must be removed from the halls of Congress," the Rev. Fr. Coughlin said.

"If newspapers have been formerly called the fourth estate in this and other nations, there is a fifth estate, the radio, to compete with the press," he said.

"Let not the sensational newspapers stultify themselves by maligning the National Union as a new political party when the National Union is doing nothing more than the newspapers have done, but is simply doing it free from the domination of advertisers."

Assailing the banking act of 1932, the Rev. Fr. Coughlin said "this action on the part of the Roosevelt administration has done and is doing more to scuttle faith in the New Deal than was accomplished even by the immoral 'Triple A' which destroyed God's beautiful gifts in the face of hunger and nakedness.

"The New Deal administration will commit suicide if, persisting in such policies, it follows through with a veto of the Patman soldiers' bonus. No third or fourth party will be necessary. No Jim Farley or ten Jim Farleys will be able to forestall the inevitable disaster which is about to crash upon the head of a banker-minded administration."

Mrs. Gordon's Body Recovered from River Near Traveled Road

Farmington, Conn., May 9 (AP)—A coroner's opinion indicated today that Mrs. Ann Booth Gordon, 25-year-old social leader, drowned in the Farmington river while the month-old search for her was at its height.

Her body was dragged from the stream at Simsbury, a few miles north of here, yesterday.

An intensive search was started the night of April 10, a few hours after she left home saying she was going to a nearby pharmacy to make a purchase for her infant daughter.

Coroner J. Preston Carver, who examined the body, after it was discovered in shallows near the east bank of the river, only about 10 feet from a well-traveled highway, said it appeared to have been in the water slightly over two and a half weeks.

After the tragic discovery life in this exclusive Hartford suburb returned closer to normal.

A Simsbury undertaker said funeral services would be held today with burial in the Farmington cemetery.

Many Farmington residents, acquainted with the young woman, had been engaged in the search.

The search over, the sympathy of these residents was directed toward Andrew Gordon, young husband of the woman and an employe of a powder company in Hartford. On the theory she had become a victim of amnesia, Farmington people had been hoping Mrs. Gordon would be found alive.

Husband, hastily summoned to the river's edge in Simsbury, made positive identification of the body after William Sweeney, foreman of a highway repair gang, found it.

Supreme Court Justice John W. Banks of Bridgeport, an uncle with whom Mrs. Gordon had lived for many years prior to her marriage, had just left the courthouse in Hartford, when he was informed of the discovery and hastened here.

Returns to Jail Loaded With Bay Rum

"What, you here again?" said Lyman Ellsworth, night jailor, as Pete Brady was turned over to him at the county jail Wednesday night by Patrolman Ray Van Buren.

Pete had been out of "the can" as he calls it only two days. Monday he finished a 10-day stretch for breaking the law and he was back again—loaded with bay rum.

When he entered the sheriff's office with the officer, the place immediately took on the aroma of a barber shop. He was unsteady and required assistance from Officer Van Buren.

"Now I'll answer all the questions," he said to Jailor Ellsworth. But you should know my history."

"How could I forget it in so short a time," said Ellsworth. Then he added, "This time we'll put you in for six months or so".

"Stop your kiddin'," remarked the old man.

Then he went through the formality of furnishing information concerning his arrest.

When Ellsworth asked him his age, he proudly said 75. Loaded with bay rum though he was, Pete got "a big kick out of it" when the jailor said "Are your parents living"?

Brady was asleep on a bench in Academy Park right near the signal box where Patrolman Van Buren had to call headquarters. He probably picked the place knowing the officer could not miss him and that sleeping indoors is preferable until the real spring weather is certain.

So Pete is in for 20 days of rest and comfortable slumber until the weather is better for outdoor sleeping and the price of bay rum takes a drop, he hopes.

Union of South Africa Sees Return to Reich

London, May 9 (AP).—Authoritative quarters said today the Union of South Africa is ready and willing to have southwest Africa, formerly Germany's, returned to the Reich.

The revelation came as representatives of the dominions and colonies resumed their conversations with members of the British cabinet on questions of Britain's foreign policy.

Sir John Simon, foreign secretary, has already given the empire statesmen full accounts of his recent visit to Berlin during which Adolf Hitler, among other things, insisted that Germany's right to colonies must be recognized.

500 Enjoyed ERB Vaudeville Show

Approximately 500 men, women and children enjoyed the ERB vaudeville show at the Municipal Auditorium Wednesday evening. The program offered a wide variety of singing, comedy, musical numbers and some real good dancing of all sorts, toe, clog and buck and wing.

The comedians were unusually good, manifesting that in the days of plenty, before the advent of the talkies, they probably played on some of the biggest and best vaudeville circuits.

The Nit Witz, Lane and Byron, two clever comedy men, were the hit of the evening, keeping the entire audience in an uproar of laughter during their 15 minute skit. One of their jokes that went over big, especially with the kiddies was the one where Byron told of a dream he had:

Byron: Last night I dreamed I was eating life savers, and when I woke up the buttons on my pajamas were gone.

Lane: I had a dream too. I dreamed little animals were crawling all over me. What's that a sign of?

Byron: That's a sign you should burn your bed.

An impersonator who did a Zasu Pitts and Mae West characterization ran into a snag on the latter.

Doing a Mae West strut she said, "How am I doin' boys?"

A little fellow in the middle of the hall yelled, "Lousy." And the audience applauded louder than at any time during the show.

Those who witnessed the program had nothing but favorable comment to offer. Several ex-vaudeville musicians described it as one of the best they had ever seen.

Why Not An Apple Festival?

It is a well known fact that Ulster county is one of the outstanding fruit centers in the United States, the apple orchards being especially famous for the quality of fruit produced.

Many other centers capitalize on the fruit industry, such as the widely reknowned Blossom Festival at Benton Harbor, Michigan, and the Cherry Blossom Festival at Washington, D. C. Why wouldn't it be possible for Ulster county to have an Apple Blossom Festival?

Both of the above mentioned festivals, which take place each year when the blossoms are in fullest bloom, draw thousands of persons to the festival center. Parades are held, the centers receive an immense amount of publicity and every industry in the localities is benefit from the occasion.

Such a plan would necessarily take a few years to become well known, and would probably mean the spending of money to achieve the result desired; however, the festivals in other parts of the country are of importance enough so that they are held year after year, and now are so well entrenched that substantial profits are reaped by the regions surrounding.

With so many publicity stunts sponsored by various groups for selfish gain, it become hard to select an event that would popularize this locality with mutual benefit to all. Yet with nature providing Ulster county with a field unexcelled and only equalled in a few other sections, it might be advantageous for Ulsterites to consider what might be done in spreading abroad the importance of one of the country's largest industries. Nature has blessed this section with beauty, especially at apple blossom time, and a little thought, endeavor and cash might be the means of giving Ulster county just the kind of publicity we are looking for but never seem to attain.

MEMORIAL MEETING FOR DR. MARY GAGE-DAY

The Ladies' Auxiliary of the Ulster County Tuberculosis Hospital held a meeting on Monday, May 6, at the hospital, as a memorial to Dr. Mary Gage-Day.

The Rev. Dr. Frank B. Seeley opened the exercises with a prayer and Judge Joseph M. Fowler gave a short resume of Dr. Day's great work in the early days of fighting tuberculosis and also paid a fitting tribute to her as a friend and a citizen.

As a further tribute to Dr. Day, whose intense devotion to the fight against tuberculosis will ever serve as an inspiration to those who carry on the work she so ably started, the Auxiliary dedicated a book-truck with a suitably inscribed brass plate.

Many friends and admirers of Dr. Day were present and the nurses attended the meeting.

The book-truck will facilitate the work of the library committee in handling books for the patients and those who so generously subscribed to it are heartily thanked by the Auxiliary.

Amelia Earhart Makes First Non-Stop Flight From Mexico 14 Hours

New York, May 9 (AP)—Amelia Earhart, who stepped lightly from her red monoplane at the Newark, (N. J.) Airport last night after completing the first non-stop flight from Mexico, had one expressed objective today—sleep.

Not that the perilous take-off or the 2,100-mile hop had tired her—she found the addition of another record to her list a "colorless" feat—but it was a "trying" reception by a cheering throng at the airport.

"It was not a particularly interesting flight," she told questioners.

The plane which had carried her across the Atlantic and from Hawaii to California touched its wheels to the brightly lighted field at 9:28:50 p. m., Eastern Standard Time, 14 hours, 22 minutes and 50' seconds after the take-off.

Miss Earhart's face was oil streaked, but she showed no signs of fatigue as she pushed back her unruly blonde locks and waved cheerfully to friends.

Police lines meant nothing to the crowd. The spectators swarmed about the plane and Miss Earhart had to abandon it to sturdier guardians.

With police cars for opening wedges, the flier slowly made her way to a hangar. Almost there, she met her husband, George Palmer Putnam, who reached her side only after prolonged football tactics by a bluecoat escort.

Miss Earhart appeared to enjoy the excitement, although she later described it as the hardest part of the venture.

"It looked like a million persons there," she said afterward. "I was afraid some of them would be hit by the plane or damage it."

She disclosed that she found the Gulf of Mexico covered by a great layer of clouds. This she escaped by soaring to 9,000 feet, only to find another great range of cloud mountains built up ahead. Between the two were a few hundred feet of clear atmosphere and for more than 100 miles she flew with clouds both above and below her.

She had headwinds at first, then tailwinds, the flier said. She averaged 151 miles an hour, flying slowly enough to conserve fuel.

CHAMPION AUTO RACERS INAUGURATE EXCLUSIVE CLUB

Indianapolis, May 9.—Just 14 men, during a quarter of a century of racing over the Indianapolis Motor Speedway, have managed to exceed 100 miles per hour for the full distance of 500 miles in the Decoration Day classic.

This was shown when speedway records were scanned to obtain a list of eligibles for an exclusive club, to be known as the "Champion 100 Mile an Hour Club," composed of men who have managed this difficult feat.

Oddly enough, there are but four winners of the race among the 14 members, these being Bill Cummings, 1934 winner; Louis Meyer, 1933 winner; Fred Frame, 1932 winner; and Billy Arnold, 1930 winner. Although Peter De Paolo, 1925 winner, set a mark of 101.13 miles per hour in winning, he remains ineligible because he was relieved during the race by Norman Batten.

Every living creature is supposed to have some purpose in nature's plan, but the road hog must have been a zoological error.

SPECIAL MEETING OF EXCELSIOR HOSE FRIDAY

To complete arrangements for attending the annual convention of the Hudson Valley Volunteer Firemen's Association at Monticello on June 20th, Excelsior Hose Co., No. 4, will hold a special meeting on Friday evening at 8 o'clock.

It is urgently requested that all members of the company attend this meeting in order that the officers may ascertain the number of men who will be in the line of parade so bus arrangements may be completed for the fire laddies and their friends.

On this annual trip the Excelsiors will be accompanied by Mayor Heuselman, John Schwenk, president of the Common Council, Chief Allan Wood of the police department, Chief Joseph L. Murphy, Fire Commissioners Moran, Mullen and Bacharack, several of the paid department and other officials.

On Friday evening also, there will be a rehearsal of Excelsior band. If there are any musicians in the city who would like to affiliate themselves with this organization, they are requested to attend this rehearsal with their instruments. Next week on Monday evening the Excelsior Drum Corps will hold their first rehearsal and all members and others wishing to join are asked also to attend.

If argument could settle anything, we'd have had all our problems figured out long ago.

Will Celebrate 50 Years of Work Here For Conservation

More than 200 years ago the necessity for forest conservation in New York state was recognized, but it was not until 50 years ago that any definite steps were taken to preserve the forest. On May 15, 1885, Governor David B. Hill signed a bill creating the Forest Commission, the forerunner of the State's various activities in conservation work.

The same year the state acquired from private owners the land adjoining the American side of Niagara Falls, thereby preserving for the public one of the scenic wonders of the world.

The fiftieth anniversary of conservation in New York state will be fitly celebrated and Governor Lehman has named a general committee of persons who have been prominent in the various phases of conservation, who will cooperate with Commissioner Lithgow Osborne in planning and carrying out the celebration.

Daniel F. Vanderlyn of Ellenville has been named as chairman of the Ulster county delegation on the governor's committee, the other members being Benjamin J. Winne, Daniel Van Alst, Henry York, Myron Bedell, Conrad J. Heiselman, William S. Doyle, Helen Loughran, Mrs. R. G. Cox, Mrs. Ralph Hayes, Mrs. Robert R. Rodie, William A. Wright, Eleanor Rose, B. C. Van Ingen, Emily S. Burnett, Ralph H. Johnson, J. Hartley Tanner, Wallace J. Andrews, Hon. Joseph M. Fowler, Barnard Joy, Melvin D. Schoonmaker, Charles B. Finch, Irving Kauder, Charles Reggins, Charles Brown and W. F. Courtier.

Chairman Vanderlyn has been asked to call his committee together within the next few days to discuss plans for Ulster county cooperating with state wide plans as well as making plans for some observance of this epochal event in Ulster county.

The celebration will be officially inaugurated with a dinner at the Ten Eyck Hotel, Albany, Wednesday evening, May 15, to be addressed by persons nationally prominent in conservation work. There will be a three days closing celebration at Lake Placid in September, which President Roosevelt has promised to attend and deliver an address.

Poughkeepsie Drives To Hold the Regatta

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., May 9 (AP).—With several communities or schools reported bidding for the annual classic, members of the Poughkeepsie citizens' committee today prepared for a drive to raise funds to insure retention of the intercollegiate regatta for this Hudson river city.

The committee, warned recently that unless the expenses of the regatta to be held next June are guaranteed, next year's races may be transferred to some other locality, is seeking to raise $5,000. The board of stewards of the Intercollegiate Rowing Association received $3,000 of this, while the remainder is used by the local committee to maintain boat houses, flats and other equipment.

No official move has been made to transfer the regatta which annually attracts the crack crews of the country. In the recent conference with local authorities, members of the board of stewards warned that the money must be paid in full each year. At that time city officials said the city would appropriate the entire $3,000 rather than lose the races.

The latest bid for the regatta came last night as the Geneva Chamber of Commerce wired an invitation to hold the races on Seneca Lake.

Unconfirmed reports that the event would be shifted from Poughkeepsie to Cayuga Lake at Ithaca have been circulated but they have not been confirmed.

Bank at Worcester Is Robbed of $14,400

Worcester, Mass., May 9 (AP).—Three men held up the Branch Bank of the Worcester County Institute for Savings this morning and escaped with about $14,400 in cash. The bank is located about three miles north of the city proper. The men made their escape by automobile.

The bank is in the Greendale section, opposite the Huge Norton Company plant.

The men escaped in a black sedan with yellow wheels. A clerk caught the number on the car.

The three young men, unmasked, rushed into the bank less than three minutes after the Brinks Express armored truck and guards had delivered the money at 9:15. The first robber, armed with a shotgun, held up Ellis A. Reeby, manager of the branch, and Samuel Noseworthy, cashier. They ordered Reeby to a back room. The two other robbers, who came in on the heels of the first bandit forced Noseworthy to open the safe. Two customers, one a woman, who came in during the robbery, were herded in the back room with Manager Reeby.

Ives Booed and Cheered.

Hamilton, N. Y., May 9 (AP).—Assemblyman Irving M. Ives, Norwich, minority leader of the state assembly, was both booed and cheered by Colgate University students as he clashed yesterday with students and members of the faculty in heated discussions of the Ives law. Ives defended the law which compels teachers to take the oath of allegiance, on the ground it is no evidence of destroying of academic freedom. Prof. J. M. Shortliffe, a bitter critic of the law, insisted the law can be interpreted to destroy academic freedom. Student leaders also attacked the law.

The dimensions are approximately 16 by 12 feet, outside measurements, and the construction is being done by the McNeel Marble Company of Marietta, Ga. Mr. and Mrs. Rose own two plots on the south side of the cemetery and thus the mausoleum is placed with due regard to the landscaping and proportions of the background. The opening faces the south and being placed nearer the rear of the lot allows a walk to the entrance. The order was placed last fall and work at the quarries began on October 25. The outside is built of blue diamond granite and the interior finish of Tennessee marble which has a pinkish tinge. At present the last slab of granite is being placed on top, and this weighs eight tons. With the foundation the weight will be 105 tons, and above the foundation it is 60 tons. In conveying the materials it required one carload of marble and two carloads of granite, and the heaviest derricks owned by the company to handle the huge slabs of granite. The construction is of Doric architecture and the bronze door opens into a lobby with seats on the side and above them on either side are two cathedral windows. The ventilators and handles to the two crypts are of bronze. Two urns are included in the plans and these are placed at each side of the entrance and are to be kept filled with flowers and plants. Shrubbery will be effectively placed about the structure when it is completed, and it will be a beautiful addition to the well kept cemetery.

The Auxiliary Club of the Methodist Church will hold their May meeting on Friday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock in the parlor of the Methodist church with Mrs. L. A. Martin, Mrs. Jesse Ohrn, Mrs. D. H. Kurtz and Mrs. R. Davis serving refreshments.

The delegate to the state convention of Catholic Daughters, Mrs. John J. Gaffney, grand regent of the local Court Nina reported some recommendations and resolutions adopted at the meeting held at Hotel Syracuse, in Syracuse last week: The opposition to communistic propaganda, opposition to birth control legislation (because it would demoralize the family and the results would be bad for the morals of the youth) and such results upon the nation; continue the work of the Legion of Decency along motion picture lines and literature; Catholic action, (action by Catholics in church, civil and social life); Catholic Youth movement. The state officers elected for the year were: Mrs. Margaret A. Tynan, Poughkeepsie, reelected for the 4th term; state vice-regent, Mrs. Michael Lucid, Syracuse; state secretary, Miss Marie Curry, Bellrose, L. I.; state treasurer, Mrs. Margaret Laneto, Chateaugay; state monitor, Mrs. Anna Salg, New York city. Accompanying Mrs. Gaffney as visitors were Mrs. Joseph Diorio and Mrs. Eugene Osgie. There were nearly 200 attending the sessions.

At a meeting of the Town Board held Saturday the members voted to make Brinckerhoff avenue a town highway and have a survey made as soon as possible. The fifth payment on the sewer construction was made to the contractor, Louis Petrossi, of $13,434. This money was acquired from the bond issue.

Mrs. Mary B. Pratt left Wednesday morning for Washington where she will spend the balance of this month, returning to Highland in June.

Pennington's Attraction

Banker Mentioned As A Possible Selection For the Police Board

Unconfirmed rumors concerning the appointment of a police commissioner to succeed Edward Kuehn whose term of office expired the first of this month, placed the name of E. H. Remmert, vice president of the National Ulster County Bank among the ranks of those so mentioned to succeed Mr. Kuehn. Efforts to get the reaction of Mayor Conrad J. Heiselman concerning possible appointment of Mr. Remmert were unavailing this afternoon, the mayor having left his office.

Mr. Remmert is said to be a registered Republican and the appointment calls for a Democrat or Independent, but it was said today that Mr. Remmert could be appointed if the Democrats did not object. It was understood that such a selection as Mr. Remmert would meet with no objection on the part of the Democratic members of the board. While Mr. Remmert has not publicly stated that he would accept such a position, it is likely say friends, that he would do so in the interests of good government in the city if requested to serve.

Sulphur Once Condensed From Fumes of Volcanoes

Men have been familiar with sulphur since before the beginning of written history, notes Thomas M. Beck, in the Chicago Tribune. Ancient scientists were peculiarly fascinated by it. The fact that it usually was found near volcanoes, and that it was about the only known mineral substance that was flammable, led them to regard it as a sort of solid form of fire, possessed with a cosmic importance almost equal to that of the gods. This feeling that there is something supernatural about sulphur has continued to the present day.

The ancients were correct when they attributed magical properties to the substance. It has been said without exaggeration that sulphur plays some part, either directly or indirectly, in the preparation of 90 per cent of the things we use.

Where do we get our sulphur? Until about thirty years ago almost all of it came from the neighborhood of volcanoes, where, during past ages it had been condensed from fumes issuing from the earth's interior. There was not much demand for the stuff in ancient times except as a curiosity. The first industrial demand for it came about the year 1500, when gunpowder, of which sulphur is an ingredient, began to come into general use.

Twenty-One Gun Salute

As far as our country is concerned we simply copied the 21 gun salute from the British; it has become the universal salute of powers of the first rank. The origin of it is not certain. The old salute of one war vessel to another was of seven guns. Possibly the old mystical significance of the number seven set it at this figure. Shore batteries, with better supplies of powder, came to be allowed to fire three guns to a ship's one. After potassium nitrate came into general use in the manufacture of powder (it does not deteriorate like the old sodium nitrate) the number of guns for the naval international salute was raised to equal the number of guns given by land forces—that is 21.

Charing Cross Gone

Up to the time of Charles II, Charing Cross stood among the fields of London. The name is derived from the Saxon word charrynge, meaning turning. In 1291 Edward I erected at Charing the last of 13 crosses which marked the route of the funeral procession of his wife, Eleanor, from Grantham, Lincolnshire, to Westminster. The cross was taken down in 1647. A modern memorial cross may be seen inside the Charing Cross station yard. It will be remembered that Eleanor journeyed with Edward I to the Holy Land and sucked the poison from a wound dealt her husband by a Moor.

Formosts To Meet Hercules Tonight; Schryvers Win, 5-1

Another exhibition game between two City Baseball League teams—the Hercules and the Formosts—will be staged at the Athletic Field this evening at 6:15. It will be the first appearance of the Hercules this season.

Manager Mills of the Formosts is expected to start Jimmy Martin on the mound to be followed by Eddie Flemming. Manager Walker of the Hercules has not announced his starting pitcher, but it undoubtedly will be Eddie Scherer, southpaw.

On Wednesday evening the Formosts and Schryvers, replacing the Crystal Beauty Shoppe, hooked up at the Athletic Field and the Lumbermen came out victors, 5 to 1. Neither team had its full strength.

Both teams are expected to have their 15 men on the field so as to get a good workout before the opening of the circuit Tuesday evening, May 14.

The Hercules also will play the Huron Indians at 2:30 Sunday afternoon at Kristic Field, Rosendale.

Gambling in Law Suits

In Sixteenth century France, gambling in law suits was not uncommon, writes C. C. Lawrence, Wollaston, Mass., in Collier's Magazine. One man would bring a civil action against another, usually without justification, for the purpose of selling the case, when he had the advantage, to a professional plaintiff who would gamble on winning it through the inimitable lying of his own staff of "witnesses."

Canada's only Apple Blossom Festival, the third annual event of its kind in Nova Scotia, will lure thousands of motorists from the United States, northward, for the celebration. The festivities, from May 31 to June 3, inclusive, open Friday evening with the Apple Blossom Dance.

SULLIVAN TO BAER

A Pictorial History of the Heavyweights

SULLIVAN VS. RYAN—1882

The first generally recognized world heavyweight champion appears on the flatic horizon—Boston's Strong Boy, the great John L. Sullivan! Amid great secrecy, after the site had been shifted several times, Sullivan knocked out Paddy Ryan, a six-foot, 200-pound claimant of the American title, in a field outside of Mississippi City, Miss., on February 7, 1882, in nine rounds—exactly 11 minutes of fighting.

Fighting with bare knuckles, with a round terminating automatically when either of the warriors was knocked down, thrown down, or slipped deliberately to one knee, the giant Boston bully battered Ryan so badly that his seconds threw in the sponge to save their man from possibly fatal injuries. Ryan never fought again, while Sullivan went on to recognition as one of the greatest of the ring's rough and tumble gladiators.

Kingston Tennis Club Will Open Season at Bard College Saturday

The Kingston Tennis Club, with the strongest group of players in its four year history, opens its season next Saturday at Bard College with four singles matches and two doubles as a test match against the college varsity of that institution. The match is scheduled for 2:30 and Hank Osterhoudt, manager of the local squad, is undecided as to the number of players he will take on the trip. It is expected he will play eight men, four in the singles assignments and four others in the two doubles. Little is known of the collegians' strength, and several of the rankling players on the local team are expected to make the trip in case the Bard College varsity shows signs of being unusually strong this year.

The Kingston tennis team, according to Osterhoudt, will carry a son against Hudson valley and other heavy schedule of matches this sea- New York state teams. Among the matches already scheduled are the Powelton Club of Newburgh, the Monroe Tennis Club and the Poughkeepsie Tennis Club. Several of the contests will be played in Kingston as the recent merger of the Twaalfskill Club and the Chestnut Hill Tennis Club will make it possible for visiting teams to come here and play. Prior to this year, lack of dressing facilities made it inadvisable for the local club to schedule matches in Kingston.

The local club will carry a tennis ladder of 12 players this year and will also put a second team into the field so that the entire squad will have an opportunity of playing match tennis. Arrangements are also being made to run off a couple of local tournaments during the season in order to better adapt the players to tournament tennis.

The squad at the present time is carrying the following list of players, but the list is expected to fluctuate during the season. The group is headed by Randall Rose, ranking veteran of the locals and present Kingston city singles and doubles champion. Others on the squad include Nick Fowler, Bon Joy, Ed Strong, Hank Osterhoudt, Bob Herzog, Bob Hancock, Stan Hancock, Bill Merrill, Jake Tremper, Bill Fuller, John Burgevin and Hank Brigham.

Catch Home Run Fever from the Babe

Chicago, May 9 (AP)—Babe Ruth, the mighty man who started the home run craze in baseball, seems to carry the fever with him wherever he lights.

The Babe's in the National League now. He isn't doing so well, it's true, mostly because of a siege of head colds. But what's happening around him? Home runs are skyrocketing in record numbers over the National League fences.

Led by the New York Giants, who today held a record of one or more home runs in 14 consecutive games, the National League clubs are riding the ball so hard and far that they are 20 games and two home runs ahead of their home run production at this time a year ago.

More than that, they are ahead of their American League circuit clout producers, who beat them, 658 to 656, in the same art last year.

A year ago today, the National Leaguers had competed in a grand total of 150 games, and had 93 home runs to their credit as against 80 for the American Leaguers in 136 contests. Today, the senior circuit teams, playing in only 130 games, have smashed 95 homers as compared with 78 in 128 American League games.

Here's a statistical table, showing the games played, club by club, a year ago at this time and today with respective home runs by clubs:

The STANDINGS

By Associated Press Sports Writer.

The Giants, admitted on all sides to be the best balanced club in the National League and to have the best four-man pitching staff, look tougher than ever now that their second-string moundsmen have begun to come through.

Tackling the first doubleheader of the 1935 season yesterday, the league leaders got fine pitching not only from Roy Parmelee, who hasn't lost to Chicago in two years, but from the "Sophomore" right-hander, Clydell Castleman, who spent most of last season with Montreal. As a result the Giants won 3 to 1 and 6 to 2, shoved the Cubs down to third place and held a two-game margin over the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Parmalee granted only three hits, lost a shoutout through Kiki Cuyler's homer and handed Lon Warneke his first defeat of the season. Joe Moore provided the winning margin in the third with his fifth homer of the season.

Castleman came through with a five-hit game and Mel Ott belted his eighth circuit blow of the year with two aboard to start the Giants off in front.

The Dodgers were almost shoved into second place when they took a 12-inning 3 to 2 decision from the Cardinals after two runs had been forced in. Paul Dean staged a big "blow-up" after walking Danny Taylor in the third inning and blew himself out of the game at the behest of Umpire Dolly Stark. Ed Heusser forced in another, then Dan Taylor and Joe Stripp nicked Bill Hallahan for doubles and the odd run. Van Mungo went the full route, giving nine hits and fanning eleven.

The Reds and Phillies divided a double slugfest. Cincinnati took the opener, 15-4, as Ernie Lombardi equalled a major league record by hitting four doubles. He got them off four different pitchers on successive times at bat. The Phils rallied to take the second game 5 to 4.

The Braves broke a hitting drouth by belting out a 12 to 3 decision over Pittsburgh.

Maintaining their unbeaten record in the home park, the White Sox came from behind to beat the Yankees 7 to 4 after Sad Sam Jones had spotted the enemy homers by Selkirk, Lazzeri and Dickey. It was Chicago's tenth straight triumph at home and the Hose maintained their record of not allowing a rival pitcher to finish a game on their grounds. Johnny Broaca went out in the fourth.

Monte Pearson pitched the second-place Indians to a 2-0 victory over the Red Sox and Lefty Grove, who granted only four hits.

The champion Tigers also were limited to four blows but with nine walks they pushed the Athletics hard before a ninth inning rally gave Philadelphia a 7-6 decision.

Washington and St. Louis slugged it out all the way, the Senators finally winning 10-9 when bunched hits proved more effective than Sam West's two circuit swats.

Alderman Kelly introduced a resolution in the Common Council Tuesday evening requesting that the baseball field at Block Park be placed in better playing condition and that the swamp in back of third base be filled in and the diamond rolled and leveled. It was referred to the board of public works.

High School Track Golf and Tennis Teams Are Busy This Week

Kingston High School's minor sports program continues in full swing this week, with the track, tennis, and golf varsities all scheduled to see action some time during the week.

Middletown Track Meet.

On Saturday, the track team will travel to Middletown for a dual meet with the Middie tracksters. Coach Kinsella announced that his entries for the various events would remain the same as in last Saturday's meet with Poughkeepsie, in which the Maroon was defeated. The Middletown meet will be the second of the season for the Kingston High squad. Regarding the Middletown track and field men, Coach Kinsella said he knew little except that they were exceptionally strong in the shot-put and discus. Nania, the Middie gridiron star, holds the DUSO record in the latter event. The first event is scheduled to be run off at two o'clock.

Play Golf At Mohonk.

The golf team, after decisively defeating Poughkeepsie High School last Saturday, expects to travel to the Mohonk Boys' School Saturday for a match with a four-man team from that institution; although this has not been definitely decided. Heitzman, Fessenden, Benjamin, and Murray or Hung will probably compose the Maroon delegation.

Tennis Team Plays Bard.

The tennis squad was to open its season this afternoon by journeying to Bard College, Annandale-on-Hudson, for a series of matches. A permanent tennis varsity is being selected by an elimination tourney, but the unfavoroble weather has prevented completion of the elimination matches, and a temporary varsity has been selected to make the trip to Bard College. Knute Beichert is captaining this squad, his teammates being Svirsky, Burgher, Seigel and Hasbrouck. Beichert and Hasbrouck have both had experience with last year's varsity; the others are rookies. Owing to competition in other spring sports, the tennis team has lost two of its ranking players, Bill Fessenden and Bill Egan. Fessenden played on the 1934 team, while Egan, a new comer to Kingston High School, has shown considerable promise in tennis, as well as track and football.

Latest results of tennis eliminations are:

Van Gaasbeck defeated Albany, 6-4, 6-2.

Weiss defeated Eastman, 6-1, 6-2.

Svirsky defeated Fischman, 6-4, 6-3.

Stock defeated Canfield, 6-3, 6-1.

Svirsky defeated Egan, 8-6, 6-4.

The tennis schedule for May and June is as follows:

May 9, Bard College, away.
May 18, Staten Island, home.
May 22, Poughkeepsie, home.
May 25, DUSO Conference, away.
May 29, Newburgh, home.
June 1, Ellenville, away.
June 8, Poughkeepsie, away.
June 12 Ellenville, home.
June 15, Newburgh, away.

Recipe for prosperity: Bring idle people and idle money together.

Fairlawn Store Owners Hold Get-together

The clerk or store manager who met his customer with a smile he suggested could win business and to illustrate this he spoke of one chain which adopted a slogan in its meat department, "free meat if the clerk don't smile". The clerks smiled and business went up 56% during smile week. His talk was a most interesting and instructive one from a salesman's or clerk's viewpoint and all derived a great benefit from it.

Officers Introduced.

Members of the Board of Control of the local Fairlawn system were introduced as were the officers. President John DeGasperis gave a resume of the business for the past few months and asked all members of the Fairlawn system who had any suggestions to make to write to the board of control and bring their troubles to the board for solution. He urged the members of the chain to support the chain's jobber, Everett & Treadwell Company, and spoke of the many courteous services which that firm and Mr. Treadwell personally had done for the Fairlawn people. A review of the various items of business was made and points for improvement in the future were discussed.

Stanley Winne was introduced and presented as the man who had worked for the success of the party and was given a rousing welcome.

At the conclusion of the business session the entertainment program was presented. There were several selections by the Lyric Quartette of Saugerties and several song and dance numbers and a short skit by Frank Oulton and his troupe of entertainers. Dancing was then in order.

WAR FOR MUSSOLINI?

In stirring tones Premier Mussolini informed Italian fellowmen on Rome's 2,688th birthday that the nation was in for a "hard period" which would "engage all the forces of the Italian people." Just as these striking photos, made during his speech, reached America, news dispatches told that thousands of more Italian soldiers had been called to serve in East Africa where there has been trouble with Ethiopia. Sisters of Svennevick Boy Gave Testimony At Negligence Trial

Further testimony was offered Wednesday in supreme court in the action brought by the administratrix of Albert Svennevick and H. Burton Kelder against Lester Wynkoop and his wife for the death of the two 11 year old lads whose bicycle collided with the Wynkoop car near Samsonville in April, 1934. Among the witnesses were the two little sisters of the Svennevick boy, Evelyn and Helen, age 7 and 9. The two girls accompanied their brother and Burton Kelder from the Svennevick home on the morning of the accident and witnessed the accident. They were the only eye witnesses to the crash outside the defendant, Mrs. Wynkoop.

Both little girls were examined by Justice Schirick as to their understanding of an oath and then took the stand. They testified the two boys were riding on the Kelder boy's bicycle. Kelder riding the wheel and the Svennevick lad was seated on the package carrier on the rear. The examination of the little girls was brief. They testified the boys were on their right side of the road when the accident happened.

Others Sworn on Stand

Several other witnesses were sworn during the day, among them the Johnston boy who testified he heard Mrs. Wynkoop say that she was sorry she had met with the accident but that she never saw the boys until she hit them. Myron Myers, constable in the town of Olive, said he heard Mrs. Wynkoop say she did not see the lads until she was right on them. He said he noticed the windshield was dirty. He told of seeing tire marks on the macadam road 20 or 25 feet down from the intersection where the accident happened. He said he had seen the Troopers test the brakes on the Wynkoop car and he believed the car had been moved when the photographs offered by plaintiff in evidence had been taken. That was his opinion. He said he was not acting in his official capacity as a constable when he went there but only as a spectator.

Mr. Myers' wife, Lillian Myers, now a teacher at Samsonville school, said she arrived about 9 o'clock and noticed the windshield of the car was very dirty She told of the position of various objects and where glass lay on the road. On cross-examination she said that in the photograph offered in evidence it was possible to see through the windshield of the car through the rear curtain window and distinguish trees in the picture.

Covered the Body.

Merritt Kelder of Atwood, uncle of Burton Kelder, testified that when he arrived at the scene about 9:20 the body of Burton was on the road. It was on the dirt road above the interesection in the "Y" where two roads joined. He saw the lad was dead and covered the body with a blanket. The bicycle lay 6 or 10 feet up the road from the body. Most of the glass he observed on the macadam near the end of the white line in the center of the road. He, too, observed the windshield was dirty. When the brakes were tested he said he observed that the right rear wheel dragged on the pavement. He said he was present when Mrs. Clara Wynkoop, her mother-in-law, Mrs. Asa Wynkoop, and another woman were talking. Mrs. Wynkoop was seated in a car and told Mrs. Asa Wynkoop and the other woman that "I don't know how it happened I missed any of them. All four children were there in the road together." On cross-examination he said there was a clear space on the windshield of defendant's Chevrolet car where the windshield wiper operated. The brakes were pronounced good by the trooper after a test.

Cecil Krom testified to observing the windshield being dirty. He said he was an automobile mechanic and saw the brakes tested by the trooper. He was not permitted to express an opinion as to whether the test was sufficient or not. He said he saw glass on the macadam 40 feet down from the intersection.

It might occur to some smart boys in Canada, too, to build a "secret army air base" on their side of the border, if they didn't have sense enough to know that nothing like that could remain secret.

20-Year Time Chart Held Freeman To Task Of Writing Lee Biography

By FRANK FULLER.

Richmond, Va. (AP).—Dr. Douglas Southall Freeman, author of the four-volume "R. E. Lee" that won the Pulitzer award in biography, finds that writing involving long research means for a newspaperman the sacrifice of many things he would like to do.

Although his own work has been a success financially and he is not a candidate for endowment, Doctor Freeman is firmly of the opinion that biographical and historical work should be endowed.

The writing of his detailed diography of General Robert E. Lee was done while Doctor Freeman carried on other work that would have taxed the capacities of many men. In the 20 years spent in writing the biography, he wrote almost all the editorials in the Richmond News-Leader, made an average of three radio broadcasts a week in recent years, delivered an average of five public addresses a month, served on the board of trustees of the University of of Richmond, the historical societies and the Poe shrine. This involved much time and travel.

He Charged Time.

When composition of his biography of Lee was started, the author opened an account, charging himself with 14 hours each week He credited against this the time spent at work, and if called away or ill, the time had to be made up. Authough he went to Europe three times during the writing and was seriously ill for three months, he finished his biography with 400 hours of work on the credit side of the ledger.

"Outside writing by a newspaperman is primarily a matter of foregoing other things," he said when asked to describe how it was done.

Dr. Douglas S. Freeman.

"He cannot do his day's work, share all the social activities that others enjoy, and still have time for historical research or literary work. If he wants the leisure that unhurried composition and painstaking revision demand, he must pay the price. I think this must be true of all those who desire to write but must earn their living in some other way. The final and unescapable choice is among the many things one would like to do."

Wrote Every Line.

Doctor Freeman's associates say research and study are his hobbies. His statement gives his reason why. There are many things he would find pleasure in doing. On a work of the magnitude of his "R. E. Lee," some use of research workers was necessary, but he did the greater part of the research work himself and wrote every line of the book. Thousands of manuscripts had to be read, as well as research in the archives and libraries of the nation. More than $5,000 went for research work alone, without including thousands of hours of the author's time.

"I have no complaint personally," said Doctor Freeman in speaking of endowment," but the American people should not ask that their biographies of great men or large historical works come from the sacrifice of poorly paid college or university professors. I have urged in public addresses that a large work should be endowed on a basis ample enough to procure the best talent and to compensate the author sufficiently to free him from financial worries.

Yield Generally Small.

"I say this for the large number who have given almost all their lives and savings for projects which enrich our literature and widen our knowledge, but which have commanded a small market. Remember that only one out of 10 non-fiction books commands a sale of even 6,000 copies in the first year of publication.

"It often happens that a man will devote three or four years and all his leisure to a book that in the first year of publication will yield only $1,000 to $1,500 in royalties. I do not think this ought to be and I can speak freely in behalf of endowment or research, for I am not a candidate for endowment."

LEGION AUXILIARY OF PHOENICIA HOLDS MEETING.

ERB Vaudeville Show Given on Wednesday

The vaudeville show given under the auspices of the local emergency relief bureau drew a good-sized audience to the Kingston Municipal Auditorium on Wednesday evening, and every act made a hit with the audience.

There has been so many stories circulated in regard to these shows that the question was asked at the ERB this morning as to just what was the actual cost in presenting the shows here. It was stated that the cost was between $25 and $30, which included transportation, lodging and two meals. The members of the cast are delivered in Kingston the afternoon of the show, lodged for the night, being given their supper and breakfast and are conveyed to the next stop. In the case of the vaudeville show last night the cast was delivered to Greycourt this morning.
